INTRODUCTORY

This genealogy of the Audenried and allied families of Musche, Wills, Wallace and Fulton was compiled in manuscript by my uncle, the late Colonel Joseph Crain Audenried (1839-1880), with the cooperation of my father, John Thomas Audenried (1837-1884). My uncle's account, however, as indicated by the prefatory note written by him on the next page, comes down only to the year 1878. Having now included additional and later information, I have printed the record for the interest of the descendants. My thanks are extended to all those members of the family represented for the kind assistance they have given.

This is to certify that the Genealogical Collections herein contained relating to the several families of Audenried, Musche, Wills, Wallace and Fulton have been gathered from the researches of myself and others. The Parish records of births and deaths, the town records in Lancaster County in Pennsylvania and other counties in the same state, family records and traditions and the dates upon tombstones in family burying lots have been examined and to my best belief these several collections are reliable and worthy of belief. Nothing has been drawn from the imagination.

JOSEPH CRAIN AUDENRIED.

AUDENRIED FAMILY

The name of Autenried, sometimes written as Audenried, Autenrieth, Uttenried, and Utenried, is known all over Germany and Switzerland, but predominately so in the South of Germany and most frequently in the villages located in the Alps of Würtemberg, between Blaubeuren and Münsingen, and also in Ulm and Heidenheim, Mannheim and the Grand Duchy of Baden, among families of rank.

The name first appears in 1333 (which was soon after the common generical names originated) in a parchment deed, in which Laurentius Uttenried conveys an impost in Blaubeuren, and this is the most antique trace that has been found.

(The official genealogical account in Würtemberg.)

In that portion of Bavaria known as Suabia, there is situated a village called Autenried, which lies in the Bishopric of Augsburg and is about eight miles directly south from the station of Günzburg on the railroad between Augsburg and Ulm. It consists of 289 inhabitants, a Church and two Castles called the upper and lower. These castles are more in the nature of large country houses of the German style, and the place is first mentioned in 1139 as belonging to the Count of Esenloh. In 1409 it came into possession of Hiob (Job) de Uttenried (old spelling) and with this Job de Uttenried commences the first knowledge of the family at this place. Following him in the old records appears in 1471 the name of Joachim de Uttenried signed as witness to a paper, and under his signature is his seal, consisting of three balls on a bar. The next mention of the family is in the year 1522, when Hans Wetzel in Suabian Hall married Apollona, the daughter of Martin Autenried. In the year 1510 Sebastian Autenried, and in 1535 Laurentius Autenried (who was the last Catholic Abbot) are mentioned as the Abbots of the Convent of Lorch, the remains of which are at the village of Lorch on the railroad between Stuttgart and Ellwangen, in what is now Würtemberg, though formerly Suabia. Evidently these, and those who follow, descended from the proprietors of Autenried, which estate in 1488 passed into other hands, although in the church records an Autenried is mentioned as having died and been buried there in 1655. This may have been one of the family at that time in possession, as the owners assumed the name of Autenried, as is the case at the present day (1878) the family in possession, von Reck, call themselves Reck von Autenried. In the year 1644 Michael Autenrieth of Blaubeuren was Pastor at Rosswalden and continued so until 1683. Blaubeuren is quite near Ulm and none of the following places are further apart than thirty miles, nor is any one of them a greater distance in a straight line from Autenried than seventy miles. Johann Jacob Autenrieth of Owen was, between the years 1660 and 1693, Deacon at Herbrechtingen and Pastor at Schopfloch and at Rommelshausen. Thomas Autenrieth, of Stuttgart, was Pastor at Reith, Ottmarsheim and Unterriezingen from 1690 to 1725, while Ernst Gotfried Autenrieth of Ottmarsheim, most probably a son of the preceding, was Deacon at Dettingen on the Schlossberg and Pastor of Neuhausen on the Erms from 1727 to 1747, while still further there is mentioned as having died at Ludwigsburg in 1752 Johann Frederick Autenrieth, Master of Arts. At the end therefore of the 17th Century there were Autenrieths residing at Stuttgart, Würtemberg, where their descendants are yet to be found. From one of these, namely Johann Conrad Autenrieth, owner of the Manor of Waldenstein, who died in 1746, descends Jacob Frederick Autenrieth, born 1740, was made Counsellor of Finances in 1795, after his return from the United States, where he had resided for some years, Vice Director of the Würtembergian Exchequer, and lastly Privy Counsellor and Minister of Finances, his son and grandson in turn being Professors of Medicine in the University of Tübingen.

There were living, early in the 18th Century, Autenrieths in the Southern part of the Grand Duchy of Baden, descendants of whom reside there yet.

Dr. George Autenrieth, Professor of Philology at Zwiebrücken in the Palatinate, writing in 1876 says, "The original cradle seems to be a Village 'Autenried,' situated in the S. W. circle of Bavaria (Schwaben and Neuburg is the official name), in the South of Günzburg upon Donau." This orthography is without doubt the correct one, plenty of villages and towns in the Suabian circle between the Iller and Lech end in "ried," which is the same as "reed" in English, the first part Auten—is a variation of Otten (Auto, Otto, Odo, in old German), so that Autenried properly signifies a village in the reeds, called from a certain Otto. This is the orthography of the Bavarian family (so to speak in order to distinguish it from the Würtembergian family). Although in former centuries the Suabian circle was extended from the Schwarzwald to the Lech, the Würtembergian family has accepted the orthography "Autenrieth." In the Electorate of Saxony another branch was also settled early in the 18th century, and occupied a position in the legal profession. In the siege of Wittenberg 1760, the property and family papers of this branch were destroyed by fire, and with them their genealogical tree. One of them, namely Heinrich Frederick Autenried, Assessor of the Imperial Chamber of Justice, was made a Noble in 1781, and in 1790 this same Heinrich, as President of the District Court of Saxony and Assessor of the Imperial Chamber of Justice at Wetzlar, was made a Baron of the Holy Roman Empire, by the Emperor Joseph of Austria.

According to a note in the hand writing of this Baron von Autenried, his family was from Switzerland and was of very old knightly nobility. In the patents which conferred the rank of Baron occur the following: "His ancestors have held high civil offices in the Electoral and Princely Chambers of the Empire and it is stated to us by our and the Emperor's beloved and faithful Heinrich Frederick von Autenried that his ancestors have lived in Switzerland and have been nobles, but that their genealogical table which was legalized in the latter part of the 17th century (as well as other records) was destroyed by fire at the siege of Wittenberg, 1760.

This branch of the family is still in existence and is represented by Baron Lewis von Autenried of Benrath, near Dusseldorf, formerly an officer in the Prussian Army. In 1794, Baron Heinrich Frederick von Autenried made application to be admitted to the order of the Knights. A discussion arose as to whether he should be admitted as a newly created nobleman or as one whose ancestors had held that rank. The Captain of the Knights finally recommended that this condition should not be mentioned in the patent, thus virtually recognizing his claim to the nobility of his family in Switzerland.

From the above it is shown that at an early period the family of Autenried had a branch settled in Switzerland, and brings us to the head of the American branch, Louis Audenried, whose father was John Casper Audenried.

1 JOHN CASPER AUDENRIED was a resident of the Canton of Basle, Switzerland. The years of his birth and death are not known. He was a man of education, of strong corporal size, being above six feet in height, was a cotton manufacturer and had a fine vineyard in the neighborhood of Basle. He served in the Army under Marshal Saxe and was present at the Battle of Fontenoy, May 11, 1745. He married Rosina Kohler, the daughter of —— Kohler and Miss Hinkley.

5 LOUIS AUDENRIED, the son of John Casper Audenried and Rosina Kohler, was born in the Canton of Basle, Oct. 22, 1757, and came to America by the way of France, Holland and England, landing in New York in 1789, from which city he went to Philadelphia soon afterwards. Previous to coming to America he was employed in a mercantile house in Flanders as correspondent in modern languages and, being a man of education, was for a time a tutor in what is now the University of Pennsylvania. In November 28, 1791, he was married by the Rev. Philip R. Pauli, to Anna Christina, the daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, of Easton, Penna., at the house of Mr. Pauli, who at that time had charge of Boehms and another German Reformed Church in Montgomery County, Penna. Anna Christina Musche was born Sept. 25, 1776, and died Mar. 15, 1864. In 1798, Louis Audenried made application to the Judge and associate Judges of the Court of Common Pleas of Berks County, Penna., to be admitted as a citizen of the United States. This application was considered, and a Certificate of Naturalization issued, bearing date of Sept. 7, 1798. After his marriage he resided at Kutztown, Penna., then at Maiden Creek, Penna., later at Schuylkill Haven, Penna., and finally at McKeansburg, Penna., where he died, Dec. 12, 1816. For nine years previous to his death he was a great invalid from rheumatism. He was buried at McKeansburg, but some years afterwards his remains were brought to Philadelphia, and buried in Laurel Hill Cemetery. After arriving in America he ceased all communication with his family in Europe and was to them, as they to him, lost.

AUDENRIED—On the evening of the 15th instant, Mrs. Anna C., relict of the late Louis Audenried, died in the eighty-eighth year of her age. The relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend her funeral, from her late residence, 512 North Seventh Street, on Monday afternoon, 21st instant, at 3 o'clock, without further notice. To proceed to Laurel Hill Cemetery.

OBITUARY

The late Mrs. Audenried has passed through many scenes of national commotion, and was a witness to the "times that tried men's souls." She saw this country grow from a colonial condition to its present magnificent proportions of a grand republic. She lived in Philadelphia when thirty thousand (30,000) more than numbered its inhabitants, and when the city limits were Vine Street north and Fourth Street west. She had a vivid recollection of the great generals of the Revolution, and her reminiscences of Washington, Lafayette and other distinguished leaders were full of interest. The privations of the colonists, (among whom were her husband and her brother-in-law), and their struggles to achieve our independence, furnished food for many a theme during the latter years of her life.

She was possessed of a remarkable vivacity of temperament, and enjoyed the full possession of all her faculties, both of mind and body, until a very few weeks prior to her demise. She took a particular interest in the rebellion now convulsing our country, and was among the most fervent of the loyalists, praying constantly for her country's success, and she often referred with pride to several of her grandchildren, now engaged in honorable warfare in the nation's behalf.

In 1793, she, with her husband, removed from Philadelphia to Berks County (which then embraced Schuylkill County), and located at the edge of the coal fields (the existence of coal was at that time known only to the hunter), in the now thriving town of Schuylkill Haven, then a vast wilderness.

As early as 1814, her late husband sent coal to Philadelphia on the axle, and ever since, some of the members of her family have been identified with the coal trade and the improvements in Schuylkill County, ranking as pioneers; so that she has witnessed the progress of this important trade from its earliest incipiency to its present enormous dimensions—the unusual spectacle being presented in her family of one of the first wagon loads being sent to Philadelphia by her husband, and upwards of half a million of tons being annually handled by her son.

In 1843, she again removed to Philadelphia, the locality of her early youth, after an absence of fifty years, where she lived to a ripe old age, loved by all who knew her, gentle, kind and affectionate in disposition, exceedingly fond of the society of her friends; and she finally fell asleep in Jesus, calm and fully resigned, heartily satiated with the vanities of this world, anxiously hopeful of participating in the unknown glories of the world to come.

6 WILLIAM AUDENRIED, eldest son of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at Kutztown, Penna., March 14, 1793. Until his fifteenth year, his education was conducted under the guidance of his father, at which time he was placed in the business house of a Quaker gentleman in Philadelphia, a friend of his father, by name Benedict Dorsey. Upon the death of his father, in 1816, the care of the family devolved upon him. From this time until 1824, he had an interest in business in McKearnsburg, and afterwards in saw mills and tanneries on the Little Schuylkill River, and also owned lime kilns and a distillery at McKearnsburg, besides dealing largely in real estate, owning at one time four thousand acres of what are today among the richest coal lands of the State of Pennsylvania. In 1836, he organized and conducted a newspaper at Orwigsburg, Penna. He also held public office, and in 1816, at the age of twenty-three, was appointed by Gov. Simon Snyder, of Penna., a "Justice of the Peace in the district numbered one, composed of the Township Brunswick, including the Borough of Orwigsburg, in the County of Schuylkill." This office he held from Dec. 19, 1816, the date of his commission, until 1821, in which year he was commissioned by Gov. Hiester, Lieutenant-Colonel of the 30th Regiment Infantry of the Pennsylvania Militia, Second Brigade, Sixth Division, which appointment was until August 3, 1828. The following is a copy of the commission.

"Pennsylvania S. S.

"In the name and by authority of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

"Joseph Hiester, Governor of the said Commonwealth to William Audenried, of the County of Schuylkill, Esq. Greeting. Know that you, the said William Audenried (being duly elected and returned), are hereby commissioned Lt.-Col. of the Thirtieth Regiment of the Militia of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the Second Brigade of the Sixth Division, composed of the Militia of the Counties of Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, and Schuylkill, to have and to hold this commission, exercising all the powers and discharging all the duties thereunto lawfully belonging and attached, until the third day of August, 1828, if you shall so long behave yourself well and perform the duties required by law—

In Testimony whereof I have set my hand and caused the Less Seal of the State to be affixed to these presents at Harrisburg, dated agreeably to Law as of the 3rd of August, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and twenty-one, and of the Commonwealth the forty-sixth.

By the Governor,

ANDREW GREGG, Secretary."

In 1822, William Audenried was elected to the State Legislature from Schuylkill County, and re-elected in 1823. In 1824, he was elected to the Senate of the State of Pennsylvania, for a term of four years. While a member of the lower house, he introduced "A resolution for the calling of a Convention to amend the Constitution of the State in order that the people might elect their own Justices and other offices," which resolution passed the House by a very large majority.

The Justices of the Peace were at that time appointed by the Governor. Many years afterwards, this Amendment was introduced into the Constitution. While a member of the State Senate, in 1827, he offered a bill entitled, "An act to provide a fund in support of a general system of Education in Pennsylvania." For this he received the thanks of the Press throughout the State and also of many private individuals, one of whom under date of Feb. 19, 1827, says, "It is with extreme pleasure that I have seen a bill introduced by you into the Senate of Pennsylvania to provide a "Fund in support of a General System of Education in Pennsylvania." Nothing came of this Bill during that session, further than that the Committee on Education to whom it had been referred, reported as follows:

"That they approve of the System of providing a fund for the support of Common Schools, but at this late period of the session, they are fearful that there is not sufficient time properly to mature a bill for that important purpose. They, therefore, recommend the subject to the earliest attention of the next Legislature." At the next session in Dec., 1827, the consideration of the Bill was resumed and Mr. Audenried watched it carefully, worked for it arduously and had the satisfaction, on April 3, 1828, after a third reading, to see it pass the Senate by a majority of five votes. From the Senate it went to the House, where, however, according to the Press of that day, "those associated with him had not the moral courage to adopt his suggestions or carry out his proposed reforms," and notwithstanding his exertions, on April 14, 1828, his Bill was defeated. Nearly twenty-five years afterwards, Judge Porter in the Pennsylvania House of Representatives, after giving credit to Gov. Wolf for his exertions, alluded to the efforts of William Audenried when he represented the counties of Berks and Schuylkill and said, "The history of Legislature on this will show that we are as much, if not more, indebted to the efforts of Mr. Audenried in his persevering labors while a member of the Senate, as to any other person referred to, for our present system. He accomplished much, affected many reforms and evidently laid the foundation of the present fabric although he was not able to rear it then * * * *. He bears the distinguished and enviable position of Originator and first advocate of a Specific Fund for Common Schools in this State, the very heart and life of the System. (United States Gazette, May 1, 1850). In 1878, fifty years afterwards, the Commissioner of Education for the State of Pennsylvania, in his annual report reiterates the words of Judge Porter and gives to Mr. Audenried the credit due him as the founder of the system of Common School Education now so thorough in Pennsylvania. Mr. Thaddeus Stevens simply built upon the foundation already laid by William Audenried.

During this same term of office he received from the Board of Commissioners of Southwark, Philadelphia, a resolution of thanks for his exertions in behalf of the Bill for the authorization of a canal through the southern section of Philadelphia County, to unite the waters of the Delaware and Schuylkill Rivers. The following is a copy of the proceedings:

"Southwark, 10th March, 1828.

Whereas this Corporation entertaining a deep interest in the favorable result of the Bill now under consideration in the Legislature of this State, authorizing a Canal through the Southern Section of Philadelphia County to unite the waters of the Schuylkill and Delaware Rivers and impressed with a grateful sense of the able support rendered by William Audenried, Esq., member of the Senate of Pennsylvania, in defending this important measure from the opposition of its opponents,

Resolved,

That the thanks of the Corporation of Southwark be tendered to William Audenried of Schuylkill County for his able and efficient support of the Southwark Canal, and that a copy hereof be transmitted to him.

Signed, JOHN OAKFORD,
Secretary to Board of Commissioners."

He was defeated in his re-election to the State Senate and in 1832 was the Anti-Masonic Candidate for Congress for the Congressional District, comprising the Counties of Lehigh and Schuylkill. The address of the Committee appointed to prepare the same, to the voters of the District, reviews the public life of Mr. Audenried and is very complimentary. It says:

"William Audenried, in early life at the solicitation of his friends, was commissioned a Justice of the Peace by Simon Snyder, which office he held during six years. In the execution of which office he acted upon the principle of equity and justice, guided by a discriminate judgment of mind. Public records prove that out of 1500 judgments entered upon his docket he had the good fortune to have but one appeal during the time that he was commissioned, which (judgment) was confirmed by the Court. His private and public character in the said capacity raised him in the estimation of his fellow citizens who honored him with a seat in the Legislature of 1822 and 1823. The active and efficient part he took in defeating the Mammoth Coal Corporation Bill, which, if passed, we have reason to believe would have created a second Mauch Chunk in Schuylkill County in place of its flourishing towns, secured him a re-election to the Legislature by an overwhelming majority and finally his close attendance to public business to a seat in the Senate of Pennsylvania, the journals of which are the best proofs of the efficient course he took in advocating the Public Good, the improvement of the coal region of Schuylkill County, in consequence of which a respectable and intelligent migration of new comers has created an active impulse of business amongst us in both an agricultural and mineral point of view, to the great satisfaction of its inhabitants." * * * *

Party spirit ran high and being a violent Anti-Mason man, he was defeated in the election. Still his services while in the State Senate were not forgotten and in 1834 he received from the Board of School Directors of the Borough of Pottsville, the following:

"Pottsville, 19th Dec., 1834.

William Audenried, Esq.,

Dear Sir:

* * * *

Your name is so intimately associated with the cause of Science in Pennsylvania and with the general instruction of the people, that the Directors feel strengthened in the discharge of their arduous duties by the information that you have already afforded, and by the further aid and countenance that we hope to derive from your good offices and well-known disposition to infuse intelligence among the people and promote the great cause of General Education.

With the sentiments of the highest respect,

I remain, dear Sir,

Your ob'dt' serv't,

(Signed)

JOSEPH LYON,

Secretary.

to the Board of School Directors for the Borough of Pottsville."

In 1836, he was again a candidate for Congress from Schuylkill County but was defeated and was in later years invited to allow himself to become a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania, but having on former occasions sacrificed his business to public life, declined this honor.

While a member of the State Senate, he married, Apr. 24, 1826, Jane M., the daughter of Alexander Wills, Esq., and his wife Isabella Wallace, of Walton Farm, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania. The following is the announcement of the marriage taken from the Harrisburg paper:

"Married on Monday evening, Apr. 24, 1826, by Rev. Mr. Williams, William Audenried, Esq., member of the Senate of Pennsylvania, and Miss Jane Maria, daughter of Alex. Wills, Esq., of Walton Farm, Cumberland County."

She was born June 8, 1808, and died Jan. 21, 1863.

In 1838, he removed to Pottsville, Penna., and in 1842, failed in his business, the land which he then owned lying today in the richest coal region of the State. From Pottsville, he removed to Hampden Farm, Cumberland County, Penna., and in 1847, during the Mexican War, offered his services to the Government, but as the officers for the ten regiments raised under the Law had all been appointed, there was no vacancy. In 1848, his house was totally destroyed by fire, and this was followed by the death of his two eldest sons, who died within a week of each other. These misfortunes greatly distressed him, and being attacked by carbuncles, he had not the strength to resist, and died Dec. 2, 1850, at the age of fifty-seven years. He was buried in Silver Spring Church burying ground, Cumberland County, but after his family removed to Philadelphia, his remains, and those of his sons, were removed to the family lot in Laurel Hill Cemetery, at Philadelphia.

7 THOMAS AUDENRIED, the second son of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born in Kutztown, Penna., February 22, 1795. After the death of his father in 1816, he went to Baltimore, and thence south. He is supposed to have died of yellow fever, which was raging at that time.

8 MARIA AUDENRIED, the eldest daughter of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at Kutztown, Penna., September 28, 1797. She married, March 14, 1820, the Rev. Gottlieb F. I. Iaeger, born July 20, 1796, a native of Stuttgart, Kingdom of Würtemberg, who came to America in 1817. He taught school for one winter in Northampton County, Penna., and the following year located in Berks County, Penna., where the remainder of his life was spent. While teaching in the old schoolhouse near Hamburg, he began to study for the ministry, and he was ordained in the Lutheran faith in 1819. He at once began preaching, and he continued in active service until four years prior to his death. At various times he had as many as fifteen congregations in charge, and he was pastor of six congregations at the time of his death. The Rev. Mr. Iaeger died at his residence in Hamburg, Penna., November 16, 1879, being at that time the oldest member of the Pennsylvania Ministerium, and was buried at Dunkel's Church, where he preached his first sermon, October 18, 1818. He was the son of the Rev. Carl Iaeger and Charlotte Comerill, of Stuttgart, Würtemberg.

9 LOUIS AUDENRIED, the third son of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at Maiden Creek, Berks County, Penna., October 19, 1799, and died of apoplexy at his residence, 512 North Seventh street, Philadelphia, September 15, 1873. During the Civil War he equipped a company at a cost of $100,000, and presented it to the government. He was unmarried, and left an estate of nearly one million dollars, which would have been much greater, but for some bad investments. The following contains an account of his life, and the esteem in which he was held:

Boston, September 18, 1873.

At a meeting of the coal trade held today at the office of Messrs. Day, Huddell & Co., called to consider the decease of Louis Audenried of Philadelphia, the following resolutions were passed unanimously as expressive of the sentiments of the trade:

“Whereas in the ruling of Divine Providence we are again gathered in sympathy with each other toward the departed as one by one in quick succession they remind us of our own mortality and the ever changing scenes of all things earthly, and now in the decease of Louis Audenried we lose a man prominent in the interests of the coal trade in Pennsylvania, a friend and benefactor, therefore:

Resolved, that in the life of Louis Audenried we have the example of one identified with the coal trade from its earliest railroad facilities, who by strict integrity, sagacity, perseverance and successful results has more than any other private merchant helped to develop the coal interests of Pennsylvania to its present gigantic proportions.

Resolved, that in our departed friend the coal trade of Boston and New England found a man ever ready to meet the individual interests of the trade, as to foster all its energies and with generous help has merited for him the kind respect we now offer.

Resolved, that in him the coal trade can with pride recall during the rebellion the noble generosity with which he contributed to the raising of regiments and private benefactions to the sick, wounded and destitute, as also his munificent gifts to the cause of education in his native State.

Resolved, as the coal trade of Boston gathered here we express our respect for the deceased and appreciation of his worth as a man and merchant, and tender to the numerous relatives, who are now called to mourn the departure of a true and genuine friend, our heartfelt sympathy.

Resolved, that a committee of three be chosen to forward a copy of these resolutions to the relatives of the deceased.

G. P. NEVINS, Chairman."

His will, which is dated in 1870, was recorded in Philadelphia at the Register of Wills office, Oct. 1, 1873.

His principal charities and donations as contained in his will were the endowment of the Audenried Professorship of History and Archaeology in Franklin and Marshall College at Lancaster, Pennsylvania, for which he gave thirty-five thousand dollars; to Christ Evangelical Reformed Church on Green Street near Sixteenth, Philadelphia, five thousand dollars; the Orphans Home near Womelsdorf, Berks County, Penna., five thousand dollars; Saint Mark's English Evangelical Lutheran Church, cor. 13th and Spring Garden Streets, Philadelphia, five thousand dollars, given in memory of his mother.

Orphans Farm School near Zelienople, Butler County, Penna., five thousand dollars; Indigent Widows and Single Women's Society of Philadelphia, five thousand dollars; and to the Old Man's Home of Philadelphia, five thousand dollars, making in all, sixty-five thousand dollars, to which must be added one hundred thousand dollars contributed before his death to the hospitals.

LOUIS AUDENRIED, ESQ.

At his late residence, 512 N. Seventh street, yesterday morning, died, of paralysis, Louis Audenried, Esq., in the 74th year of his age. Mr. Audenried was born in Berks County, Pennsylvania, October 19, 1799, and was the third son of Louis Audenried, who came to America from the Republic of Switzerland in 1789; married and settled in Berks County, Penna., in 1791. His education was commenced in the German, and subsequently in the English language through private tutors. In 1819 he made a tour through northern New York, thereby acquiring a knowledge of the school system then in vogue in that section of the State, which led to the active part taken by his brother William, a member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature, to introduce his bill, entitled "An act to provide a fund in support of a general system of education in Pennsylvania," which, though it did not at that time pass, was the origin of the common school system of his native State.

In 1820 he again resumed his education, upon finishing which he entered into mercantile business at McKeanburg, Penna. In 1826 he combined lumber with his business, and in 1828 engaged in land speculations, and opened a coal mine near the town of Tuscarora, Schuylkill County, Penna. In 1829 he erected an iron forge on Coal Run, a small tributary of the Little Schuylkill River, but, being in advance of the iron age of this continent, failed, but later recovered himself in the business of mining and shipping coal, and settled all his old indebtedness in full, with interest. In 1834 he filled the office of prothonotary of Schuylkill County, and assisted in editing a German paper at Orwigsburg, the county seat, until 1839.

In 1842 he removed to Philadelphia and embarked regularly in the coal trade. His father, as early as 1814, had sent coal from Schuylkill County to Philadelphia in a wagon, while he afterward handled upward of half a million tons of coal per annum for many years. He was among the first to ship coal from Port Richmond, having been personally engaged in business on the Schuylkill side of Philadelphia, and in the early struggle of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad to build up coal tonnage was a most valuable ally. He removed his shipping business to wharf No. 5, Port Richmond, and afterward to wharf No. 1.

In 1847 he entered into co-partnership with the Messrs. Sturdevant, under the style and name of Newell, Sturdevant & Co., shippers of coal.

In 1850 he made a tour of Europe. In 1852 he dissolved partnership with the Messrs. Sturdevant, and went to Europe. In 1853 he again visited Europe, and upon his return in the fall of the same year he established the house of Louis Audenried & Co., coal and iron merchants. In 1855 he became largely interested in the Honey Brook coal lands, on which now stands the town of Audenried, and made another tour in Europe during that year. In 1856 he established the house of Audenried, Remington & Langdon, coal merchants, at Elmira, N. Y., for supplying the Northwestern and Lake trade, from which he afterward retired, leaving the house in successful operation. In 1857 his attention was turned to successful financing his extensive business through the memorable panic of that year. In 1858 he sought recreation at the various celebrated watering places of Europe, and on his return again took an active part in his business.

In the late War of the Rebellion he (being a member of the Union League) manifested great interest and zeal in behalf of the Republican Party and in the suppression of the rebellion, by contributing largely of his private means. In 1865 he again visited Europe for the purpose of regaining his health, and, from his return to the close of his life, turned his attention more particularly to his private business. For a number of years he was a director of the Bank of North America, and of the Anthracite Insurance Company. He was far-seeing, and a man of indomitable will, but kind-hearted and liberal to a fault. He has done much for his relations, contributing likewise to private and public charities, the last of which was his donation, during July, of $100,000 to the hospitals. Always active and zealous, careful in noting the passage of time, and to his last following closely the generalities of his business affairs, not forgetting to put his house in order before resignedly passing away to the better world.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Commercial Exchange, held yesterday, Robert Gray, Esq., president, announced in a feeling manner the death of Louis Audenried, Esq., an old member of the association.

The following preamble and resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, God in His infinite wisdom has removed from our midst Louis Audenried, an old and respected member of our organization;

Resolved, That in the decease of Mr. Audenried the mercantile community and society at large have lost one whose integrity of purpose, whose universal probity of manner, secured for him the respect of his fellow citizens.

Resolved, That a copy of the above preamble and resolutions be entered upon the minutes of our association, and that a committee of five be appointed to condole with his family in their deep affliction.

The Chair appointed the following committee:

John Milnes, Charles Norton, James Neill, C. J. Hoffman and John H. Michener.

10 LOUISA AUDENRIED, second daughter of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at McKeanburg, Penna., October 26, 1803; died July 6, 1880. She remained unmarried and passed her youthful and middle life in devotion to the children of her brothers and sisters. Ever willing, she was always to be found in the hour of anxiety ready to take charge of the new life or close the eyes of the dying.

11 GEORGE AUDENRIED, the fourth son of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at McKeanburg, Penna., July 20, 1805, and married April 26, 1826, Mary M. Hagenbuch, a descendant of Andreas Hagenbuch, who came to America October 8, 1737. Mr. Audenried resided on his farm in Northampton County, Penna., near Allentown, where he died very suddenly of apoplexy, April 24, 1877. His wife was born March 17, 1809, and died May 5, 1877. They are both buried in the burying ground of the Church at Howertown, Northampton County, Penna.

Children of George Audenried and Mary M. Hagenbuch:

†33 Amanda E. Audenried, b. March 4, 1827; d. Sept. 12, 1890.

34 John L. Audenried, b. May 26, 1829.

†35 Emma C. Audenried, b. August 5, 1831; d. December 23, 1911.

- 36 Thomas H. Audenried, b. April, 1833. Married a girl from Chicago.
- †37 James E. Audenried, b. April, 1835; d. 1891, unmarried.
- 38 Rheuben H. Audenried, b. October 25, 1837. Unmarried.
- †39 Lewis C. Audenried, b. February 25, 1840; d. October 25, 1867.
- 40 Louisa N. Audenried, b. November, 1842. Unmarried.
- †41 William W. Audenried, b. September 18, 1847; d. 1889.
- †42 Catherine Audenried, b. August 9, 1852.

12 CATHERINE AUDENRIED, the youngest child of Louis Audenried and Anna C. Musche, was born at McKeanburg, Penna., Oct. 24, 1807, and died of cancer, at Philadelphia, Jan. 7, 1879. She married Nov. 30, 1847, Jacob Miller, of Philadelphia, who died Oct. 27, 1854. After the death of her husband she resided with her mother, whose dying eyes she closed. The children and grand-children of her brothers, and particularly of her sister should ever bear in their memories the many kindnesses received at her hands.

They had no children.

13 ISABELLA WALLACE AUDENRIED, the eldest child of William Audenried and Jane Maria Wills, remained unmarried. She was born at Walton Farm in Cumberland County, Penna., on February 2, 1827, in the same house in which her mother and her maternal grandmother were born. At the age of seventeen she was sent to her grandfather's farm opposite Harrisburg, to spend the winter while attending school in Harrisburg. During the same winter her cousin Lawson Wills, of Pittsburgh, Pa., was also sent to his grandfather's farm (the same place), to recuperate from an attack of typhoid fever. They became engaged, but before their attachment for one another was known by their families, Lawson took a severe cold which, because of his depleted condition, proved fatal, and he died in the early part of the year 1844. On account of her youth, it was not considered necessary for Isabella to attend the interment of his remains in Pittsburgh, so she carried her secret until a few weeks before her death, when she visited the grave of the man to whom she had been loyal for fifty-eight years. She died Nov. 23, 1902, nine weeks after seeing his grave, and after a three days' illness of pneumonia. It seemed as if her life-long wish to stand before the grave of the man she had loved had been gratified, and she was then ready to pass out of this life. She had been a loving daughter and sister, and had helped to bring up her brothers and sisters, and also the children of her brother William, with whom she made her home after her mother's death. She lived a Christian life of self-sacrifice and helpfulness to all with whom she came in contact, was a most loyal and affectionate sister, aunt and friend, and was greatly loved by all who knew her.

16 WILLIAM GRATTAN AUDENRIED, the eldest living son of William Audenried and Jane M. Wills, was born in McKearnsburg, Penna., October 9, 1832. He received his education at Dickinson Preparatory College, Carlisle, Penna., at a private school in New Haven, Conn., Russell's Collegiate and Commercial Institute, and at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. In 1853 he became a partner in the firm of Louis Audenried & Co., coal and iron merchants, the chief office being in Philadelphia, with other offices in New York and Boston. Upon the death of the head of the firm, Louis Audenried, in 1873, the firm was dissolved and a new one organized under the name of William G. Audenried & Co., coal merchants, with business houses in New York City and Boston. For several years he had been a director in the Bank of North America, of Philadelphia, having succeeded his uncle Louis Audenried. His residence was "Edgewood," near Abington Station, Montgomery Co., Penna., in which district he was a school director. He married at Bethlehem, Penna., November 3, 1859, Emma Amelia, the daughter of Dr. Martin, of that place. He died July 28, 1896.

Children of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin:

- †43 Emma Adele Audenried, b. October 5, 1867; d. March 4, 1894.
- †44 William Grattan Audenried, Jr., b. Dec. 13, 1870.
- †45 Mary Wallace Audenried, b. May 31, 1874.
- †46 Louise Martin Audenried, b. December 9, 1876.
- †47 Anna Fulton Audenried, b. October 7, 1878.

18 JOHN THOMAS AUDENRIED, son of William Audenried and Jane Maria Wills, was born May 2, 1837, at McKeanburg, Schuylkill County, Penna. He received his education at Russell's Collegiate and Commercial Institute, in New Haven, Conn., and at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. In 1858, the year in which he attained his majority, he identified himself with the industry in which he was destined to achieve material success and a high reputation. He was first engaged in the anthracite coal trade, and in 1866 formed a partnership with the late Charles F. Norton. Upon the death of Mr. Norton, the firm name became Audenried-Norton Company.

The business of the firm was that of mining and shipping coal, and under the leadership of Mr. Audenried the concern flourished, building up a large and profitable trade. At the same time, in association with Robert Gorrell, he operated the Continental Colliery, near Ashland, Penna. His prosperity was such that, in 1875, when only thirty-eight years of age, he found himself in circumstances which justified him in retiring from business. A man of Mr. Audenried's energy could not, however, long remain inactive, and in 1879 he re-entered the business arena in partnership with his brothers, William G. and George A. Audenried, under the name of Audenried and Company, maintaining the connection to the close of his life. He was President of the Philadelphia Fire Insurance Company. For many years he was a director of the Girard National Bank, as well as of the State Line and Sullivan Railroad, and also President of the Macungie Iron Furnace.

In the political world, Mr. Audenried was an acknowledged leader, being one of the organizers of the Committee of One Hundred, and, as long as he lived, ceaselessly active in the cause of good government. Benevolence was a marked feature of his character, and for several years he served as President of the Tenth Ward Charity Organization. He was a Trustee of the West Arch Street Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Audenried was also a member of the Union League of Philadelphia, and of the Social Art (now Rittenhouse) Club.

The personality of Mr. Audenried was strong but not complex. Striking in its simplicity, it realizes for us at once the aggressive, honorable business man and the truly public-spirited citizen. His portrait confirms the statements of his record. One of his dominant traits was domestic affection, and, as a friend, he was loyalty itself.

During the Civil War, 1861-1864, he, during the invasion of Maryland, in 1862, went into the field as Captain in the Blue Reserves of the State Militia.

Mr. Audenried died at his residence, 1823 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, on March 10, 1884, and was buried in Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

On October 7, 1862, he married Emma, only child of Charles Young and Rachel Swarts, of Philadelphia. She was born August 1, 1842, in Philadelphia; died October 29, 1900, at 1823 Walnut Street, and was buried in the Charles Young and John Thomas Audenried lots, Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia. Charles Young was born in Line Lexington, Penna., February 10, 1799. He studied medicine as a young man, but never practiced it. He entered the grocery business with his brother Matthias, at Montgomeryville, Penna., and later came to Philadelphia, where he entered the wholesale grocery business with Isaac Waterman.

On September 15, 1837, Charles Young was married by Dr. Kennard, of the Baptist Church at Philadelphia, to Rachel Swarts (daughter of David Swarts and Margaret Mathews). She was born at New Britain, Penna., November 6, 1809, and died at "Rosedale," Abington, Penna., June 22, 1877, and was buried at Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia, in her husband's lot.

Charles Young died of paralysis, on the evening of October 13, 1873, at 1825 Arch Street, Philadelphia, and was buried at Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia. The Philadelphia Public Ledger, in its issue of October 15, 1873, printed the following obituary notice:

"Death of An Old Merchant.—Mr. Charles Young, an old and well-known merchant of this city, died at his residence, 1825 Arch Street, on Monday, in the 75th year of his age. For more than forty years he was engaged in the wholesale grocery business, as an active partner in the firm of Waterman, Young & Co. He was also for many years a director of the Bank of Northern Liberties, and was one of those who gave substantial encouragement and support to the construction of the North Pennsylvania Railroad. Mr. Young was a man of great business energy and ability, and had a high reputation both as a merchant and a citizen. During the late war, he gave freely to sustain the cause of the Union, and at all times he contributed liberally towards charitable and religious objects."

Charles Young was the son of John Young, who was born January 16, 1759, died April 9, 1815, married December 15, 1795, Mary Mathias, (b. January 24, 1769, d. 1849). John Young was the son of John Young, who was born in 1729, died May 24, 1794, married in 1758 Margaret Mathews, (daughter of John and Diana Mathews). She was born about 1730, died 1819. John Young was the son of Bernard Young, who was born in Wales between 1695 and 1700. He came to America about 1710 or 1712, and married June 12, 1723 Janet Thomas (daughter of Lewis Thomas). He died in 1767. His wife died in 1739.

Mary Mathias, who married John Young, above, was the daughter of David Mathias. He was born in 1737, married Hannah Pugh (daughter of Hugh Pugh, who came from Wales in 1725). David Mathias died in 1805; his wife died September 8, 1804. David Mathias was the youngest son of John Mathias, who was born in Nevern Parish, in Pembrokeshire, South Wales, about 1680. His second wife was Elizabeth Morgan, daughter of Thomas Morgan. John Mathias came to America about 1722-1723. He died August 18, 1748.

Rachel Swarts, who married Charles Young, was the daughter of David Swarts, and granddaughter of Owen Swarts. David Swarts married April, 1807, Margaret Mathews (b. December 29, 1782, d. of typhus fever, September, 1823). He went west in 1818, and was never heard of again. Margaret Mathews was the daughter of Benjamin Mathews, born 1739, married September 22, 1768, Dinah Thomas (b. October 3, 1747, d. 1793). Benjamin Mathews was the son of John Mathews, born 1713, died 1782, married Diana Thomas (b. in Wales, d. 1799). John Mathews was the son of Simon Mathews (d. 1753) and his wife, Jane. Dinah Thomas was the daughter of Ephraim Thomas, born about 1710, married about 1740 Eleanor Bates (daughter of Joseph Bates and Margaret Hammer). Ephraim Thomas was the son of the Rev. William Thomas, an Elder Baptist preacher, born in Llanwenarth, in Monmouthshire, Wales, in the year 1679. He came to America at the age of twenty-three years, arriving February 14, 1702. He died October 6, 1757, aged seventy-nine. His wife, Anne, born in 1680, died November 5, 1752, aged seventy-two years.

Children of John Thomas Audenried and Emma Young:

- †48 Charles Young Audenried, b. December 9, 1863; d. April 16, 1930.
- †49 Jane Wills Audenried, b. September 20, 1865.
- †50 William Francis Audenried, b. February 22, 1867; d. July 28, 1903.
- †51 Lewis Audenried, b. March 23, 1870; d. November 5, 1920.
- †52 Marion Audenried, b. April 1, 1873.
- 53 Helen Audenried, b. December 14, 1874; unmarried.
- 54 Edith Audenried, b. March 11, 1878; d. April 8, 1880; buried in Central Laurel Hill Cemetery.

19 JOSEPH CRAIN AUDENRIED, sixth son of William Audenried and Jane M. Wills, was born at Pottsville, Penna., November 6, 1839. In 1857, he was appointed a cadet to the U. S. Military Academy at West Point from the Fourth Congressional District of Pennsylvania, embracing the Counties of York, Cumberland and Perry, which institution he entered June 1, 1857, and from which, after a course of study of four years, he was graduated June 24, 1861, just as the War of the Rebellion occurred.

After graduation he was appointed a Second-Lieutenant in the 4th (old 1st) U. S. Cavalry and assigned to duty on the Staff of Major-General Daniel Tyler, who was next in command to General McDowell, as Aide-de-Camp and was with him at the battles of Blackburn's Ford July 18, and Bull Run July 21, 1861. On Dec. 1, 1861, he was appointed a First-Lieutenant in the 6th U. S. Cavalry, his commission dating back to June 24, 1861, and made Adjutant of the same.

The following taken from Collums Biographical History of the Officers and Graduates of the U. S. Military Academy, Vol. II, gives his military record: "Served during the Rebellion of the Seceding States, 1861 to 1866, in drilling volunteers at Washington, D. C. June and July, 1861; in the Manassas Campaign of July in 1861, as Aide-de-Camp to Brig. Gen. Daniel Tyler (second in command), being engaged in the action at Blackburn's Ford, Va., July 18, 1861, and Battle of Bull Run July 21, 1861, in the defences of Washington, D. C. July, 1861, to March, 1862, being attached to Company A, 2nd Artillery (upon the expiration of Gen. Tyler's commission), from August to December, 1861, as Adjutant of the 6th U. S. Cavalry from Dec. 1, 1861, to July 21, 1862, during which time he was detached in the Virginia Peninsular Campaigne (Army of the Potomac), as Acting Assistant Adjutant General of the 1st Cavalry Brigade, Brig. Gen. Emory commanding, from March to July, 1862, being engaged in the seige of Yorktown, April 5, to May 4, 1862. Battle of Williamsburg, May 5, 1862. Action at Hanover Court House, May 27, 1862. On July 10, 1862, he was appointed Aide-de-Camp to Major General E. V. Sumner, Commanding 2nd Army Corps, Army of the Potomac, promoted to the rank of Captain and Aide-de-Camp Aug. 20, 1862. Served with Gen. Sumner in the Maryland Campaigne (Army of the Potomac), Sept., 1862, being engaged in the Battle of Antietam, Sept, 17, 1862 (where he was wounded and brevetted Captain in the regular Army for gallant and meritorious services), in the Rappahanock Campaigne, Army of the Potomac, Dec., 1862, to Apr., 1863, being engaged as Aide-de-Camp to Gen. Sumner, in the Battle of Fredericksburg, Va., Dec. 13, 1862. In March, 1863, Gen. Sumner died, while on his way to take command of the Department of Missouri at Syracuse, N. Y., and Capt. Audenried was ordered to report to Maj.-Gen. John E. Wool, commanding the Department of the East, New York City, where he remained on his Staff during the month of April, 1863, at the end of which time he was ordered to report to Maj.-Gen. U. S. Grant, for duty on his Staff, as Aide-de-Camp. Gen. Grant was at this time making his Campaigne against Vicksburg, Miss., at which place Captain Audenried joined him June 20, 1863. Served with Gen. Grant from June 20, 1863, to Oct. 1, 1863, being engaged in the seige of Vicksburg June 20, to July 4, 1863, and present at the surrender of the Confederate General Pemberton's Army at Vicksburg, July 4, 1863. In Sept., 1863, Maj.-Gen. W. T. Sherman was ordered from Vicksburg to the relief of the Army under Gen. Rosencranz at Chattanooga, Tenn. Captain Audenried was ordered to report to him for duty as Aide-de-Camp. He joined Gen. Sherman at Memphis, Tenn., and served with him as Aide-de-Camp from Oct. 1, 1863, being engaged in the march from Memphis, Tenn., to Chattanooga, Oct. 1, to Nov. 20, 1863, participating in the action at Colliersville, Miss., Oct. 11, 1863, Battle of Missionary Ridge, Nov. 24 and 25, 1863. March to the relief of the Army under Gen. Burnside, at Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 28, to Dec. 2, 1863, and return to Chattanooga thence to Vicksburg, Miss., Dec. 1863, to January, 1864. Expedition to Meridian, Miss., Feb. 1 to 25, 1864. Atlanta Campaign, May to Sept., 1864, participating in the Battles of Ressaca, May 14 and 15, New Hope Church, May 25 to 28. Kenesaw Mountain, June 20, to July 2. Atlanta, July 22. Atlanta again, July 28. Jonesboro, Sept. 1, and siege and capture of Atlanta from July 22 to Sept. 1, 1864, for which he was brevetted, Sept. 1, 1864, Major in the Regular Army for gallant and meritorious services during the Atlanta Campaign. March from Atlanta to the Sea, Nov. 14, 1864, which terminated with the capture of the City of Savannah, Dec. 21, 1864. Invasion of the Carolinas, January 15, to April 26, 1865, participating in the battles of Averysboro, March 16, and Bentonville, March 20 and 21, 1865. Capture of Raleigh, N. C., April 13, and surrender of Gen. Jos. E. Johnson's Rebel Army at Durham Station, N. C., Apr. 26, 1865, being brevetted March 13, 1865, Lieutenant-Colonel in the Regular Army for gallant and meritorious services during the rebellion. March to Richmond and Washington, D. C., Apr. 28, to May 24, 1865. Stationed at Headquarters Military Division of the Missouri, June 27, 1865, to March, 1869. In 1866, Gen. Sherman having been appointed Lieutenant-General, Captain Audenried was promoted to the rank of Lt.-Col. on the Staff. July 1, 1866, he was promoted in the regular Army to the rank of Captain, 6th U. S. Cavalry, having been previously a First-Lieutenant in the same.

On March 4, 1869, Lieutenant-General Sherman was appointed General of the Army, and Lt.-Col. Audenried became Colonel and Aide-de-Camp, and with him changed his station to Washington, D. C."

At the close of the war, Col. Audenried received the following endorsements from his superiors:

"I know Lt.-Col. Audenried well and deem him well qualified, as well as having richly earned increased rank in the reorganization of the Army. I therefore cordially endorse his recommendations for advance rank. (Signed) U. S. GRANT,
Washington, D. C. Lieut-General.
Jan. 30, 1866."

"St. Louis, Jan. 19, 1866.

I endorse the within application. Lieut.-Col. Audenried is and has been on my Staff. I have seen him in action, under fire often and have sent him with orders through dangerous country, and know him to be brave and 'entre prenant.'

(Signed) W. T. SHERMAN, Major-General."

"Washington, D. C., Jan. 30, 1866.

I cordially endorse Maj.-Gen. Sherman's recommendation of Bvt. Lieut.-Col. Audenried. I knew him as a member of the Staff of Major-Gen. Sherman in the Atlanta Campaign '64, and have always regarded him as a brave, energetic and reliable officer.

(Signed) GEO. H. THOMAS,
Maj.-Gen., U. S. A."

"Wilmington, Del., Jan. 28, 1866.

To the Adjutant General, U. S. Army,
Sir:

I take the liberty of recommending Capt. J. C. Audenried, U. S. Cavalry, Bvt.-Major, U. S. A., for promotion in one of the new Cavalry regiments. I have known Capt. Audenried throughout the War as a brave, accomplished and skillful officer, and although his services have been mostly upon the Staff, he is fully entitled to promotion to the grade of field officer.

Very respectfully, Your obedient Servant,

(Signed) J. H. WILSON,
Capt. Engrs. Bvt.-Brig.-Gen., U. S. A.
Late Major-Gen. U. S. Volunteers."

After the War in 1865, Col. Audenried visited Europe, in company with his uncle Louis Audenried, and had given him from the State Department a special passport and a letter of recommendation to the courtesy of "The respective Diplomatic and Consular Agents of the United States in Europe." He also carried a letter signed by Andrew Johnson, President of the United States, commanding him "to all Civil, Military and Naval Officers of the United States and to all loyal citizens of the U. S. on duty or temporarily resident in Europe."

In July, 1866, he made a tour through Canada with Gen. Sherman and also passed three months with him traveling on the plains, going from Omaha to Fort Laramie, thence by the Chug River to Fort Sanders, thence by Virginia Dale Pass to Denver, thence by Sangre de Cristo Pass to Fort Garland and to Fort Reilly, Kansas, via the Huerfano and Arkansas Rivers. The journey was made in an ambulance.

Maximillian of Austria being on the throne of Mexico and public affairs making it necessary that some one with authority should be sent with the American Minister to Juarez, the Mexican President, General Sherman was detailed and directed Col. Audenried to accompany him. They sailed from New York City, in Nov., 1866, touched at Havana (where they were the recipients of much attention, both from the Captain General and the citizens), Vera Cruz, Tampico and Matamors, returning home by the way of New Orleans, Dec. 30, 1866.

On March 21, 1866, he married Mary Jane, the eldest daughter of Coffin Colket and Mary Walker, of Philadelphia, Penna., in the Second Congregational Church, Phila. In 1867, he again visited Europe accompanied by his wife, and was given unsolicited on his part, by General Grant, Commanding U. S. Army, the following letter:

"Headquarters Armies of the U. S.
Washington, D. C., Apr. 10, 1867.

It affords me great pleasure to introduce to all persons, Col. J. C. Audenried of the U. S. Army, as a gentleman worthily representing the Old Army of this Country. Col. Audenried served with distinction during the entire rebellion through which the United States has passed, with much credit—to himself and the advancement of the cause. In peace he is an officer of the class that give tone and character to his profession.

(Signed) U. S. GRANT,
General."

In a letter written to Gen. Hurlbert, Member of Congress, from Illinois, protesting against a proposed reduction by Congress of his Staff, Gen. Sherman writes as follows:

"Col. J. C. Audenried, now a Captain in the 6th Cavalry, is an educated and highly competent officer and accomplished gentleman, strong and manly and in perfect health, willing and ready to take the field at a minute's warning, or to mingle with the most refined society of any city on earth. He left West Point in 1861, went straight into the first battle of Bull Run, and soon attracted the notice of that fine old soldier, Gen. Sumner, near whose person he served in the field till he died.

Instead of lingering to the rear as he might have done, he came to Vicksburg in search of service, where danger was, and having a vacancy on my Staff, I chose him. From that day till the War was over, he was with me and I habitually used him to convey my orders to the Cavalry far off on the flanks. Many and many a night, when others slept, he has been compelled to ride thirty and forty miles to carry orders and bring back information after running the gauntlet of the rebel pickets and guerillas. He too, has earned my personal respect and gratitude."

In Nov., 1871, Gen. Sherman went abroad and directed Col. Audenried to accompany him. Lt. Grant, son of the President, was also of the party. They spent ten months in travel. By invitation of Admiral Alden, U. S. Navy, Commanding the European Squadron, they sailed, in his flag ship the "Wabash," from New York, Nov. 15, 1871, and during the tour visited the island of Madeira, the cities of Cadiz and Seville, and at Gibraltar took leave of the Admiral and continued their journey by the regular means of travel. During their absence from the United States, they visited Spain, Italy, Sicily, Malta, Egypt, Smyrna and Ephesus, Constantinople, where they were the guests of the Sultan, Sebastopol and the Crimea, passed through Mingrelia and Georgia to Tiflis in Circassia, thence by carriage over the Caucasus Mountains to Taganrog on the sea of Azov, six hundred miles, thence to Moscow, St. Petersburg, Warsaw, Berlin, Leipzig, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Munich, Switzerland, Strassburg, down the Rhine to Cologne, thence to Paris (by way of Metz and Sedan), where they were entertained by Mr. Thiers, President of the French Republic, thence to London and from there to Scotland and the Highlands and passing from Londonderry and the Giants Causeway through Ireland, took the steamer at Queenstown and arrived in New York, Oct. 16, 1872.

The party was presented to and entertained by the crowned heads of Spain, Italy, Egypt, Turkey, the Caucasus, Russia, Austria, Switzerland and France (Republics), England, and by His Holiness the Pope.

The headquarters of the Army were removed to St. Louis, Mo., in 1874, and back to Washington, D. C., in 1876, where Colonel Audenried accompanied General Sherman in his capacity of Aide-de-Camp, and at this last mentioned city he was (1878) stationed, having been for fifteen years on the staff of that distinguished General.

Col. Audenried died June 3, 1880. His widow, Mary Colket Audenried, died February 11, 1912, at 1027 Vermont Ave., Washington, D. C., and is buried at West Point, N. Y.

22 GEORGE ALBERT AUDENRIED, the son of William Audenried and Jane Maria Wills, was born in Cumberland County, Penna., February 7, 1846. He was educated in New Haven at Russell's Institute; served as a Second-Lieutenant in the Pennsylvania Militia (40th Regiment), for a short time during the Rebellion; was afterwards in the retail coal trade in Philadelphia, and since 1874, a member of the firms of Wm. G. Audenried & Co., and Geo. A. Audenried & Co., miners and shippers of coal, with the principal office in Philadelphia, and sub-office in Boston, Mass., where he represented the two firms, and resided. He was married in 1885, at Medford, Mass., to Mary Gray, of Boston. She was the daughter of Frank A. and Helen Gray, of Boston. No issue.

George A. Audenried died July 21, 1907; his wife died August 23, 1921, in France. They are buried at the Church of St. James the Less, Falls of Schuylkill, Philadelphia, Penna.

23 LOUISA CATHERINE AUDENRIED, daughter of William Audenried and Jane Maria Wills, was born at Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 21, 1848; died Mar. 5, 1918; buried at Arlington Cemetery. She married, June 24, 1880, at Abington, Pa., Peirce Crosby.

Peirce Crosby, a descendant of Richard Crosby, of England, a purchaser from William Penn, who settled in 1682, in what is now Delaware County, was born at Chester, in that County, January 16, 1823. He entered the Navy in 1838, and after serving on several ships in the Mediterranean, he returned to the United States in 1843, to attend the Naval School at Philadelphia. In 1844, he was promoted to passed midshipman, and after spending two years on the Coast Survey, he was ordered, in 1846, to the "Decatur," and took part in the attacks of Tuxpan and Tobasco, in the Mexican War. In the interval between the Mexican and Civil Wars, he was cruising, or on shore duty. At the outbreak of the Civil War, as Lieutenant, his first work was to keep open communications in the Chesapeake Bay, and to cut off supplies. In doing this, he captured and destroyed Confederate vessels. Being transferred to the frigate "Cumberland," he transported the troops at Hampton Creek before and after the fight at Big Bethel. He performed a daring exploit in the capture of Forts Hatteras and Clarke, with a garrison of 700 men, by landing in a heavy sea a force of only three hundred men, and, by throwing out a strong picket, concealing their weakness from the enemy until the arrival of the squadron, which had been driven out to sea. As commander of the gunboat "Pinola," he took part in the cutting of the chain barrier in the Mississippi, at Forts Jackson and St. Philip, afterwards running the fire of the forts with his companion boat, the "Itaska."

He took part in the bombardment of these forts, and of the Chalmette batteries, in the capture of New Orleans, the passage and repassage of Vicksburg, and the engagement with the "Arkansas." In September, 1862, he was promoted to Commander, and after having commanded the "Sangamon," for a short time, was made Fleet Captain of the North Atlantic Squadron, under Admiral Lee. In co-operation with General Dix, he commanded an expedition up the York River. Following this, while commanding the "Florida" and the "Keystone State," he captured a number of blockade runners. As Commander of the "Metacomet," he blockaded Galveston, and, in the operations at Mobile Bay, cleared a passage for the squadron by directing the removal of torpedoes.

In 1868, he was promoted to Captain. He was inspector of ordnance at Norfolk Navy Yard, 1869-70; at Philadelphia Navy Yard, 1871-2; and at Washington Navy Yard, 1872-4. In 1874, he was commissioned Commodore, and commanded League Island Navy Yard (Philadelphia), 1878-80. He was commissioned Rear-Admiral in 1882; in that year, he commanded the South Atlantic Station; and in the following year, the Asiatic Station.

In October, 1883, he was retired on his own application, and after that resided in Washington. He died June 15, 1899, and was buried at Arlington National Cemetery, Arlington, Va.

A destroyer, named after him, was, in 1918, christened "Crosby" by his daughter.

He participated in the Battle of Fredericksburg, Va., December 13, 1862. On November 8, 1864, he married Lydia Leamon, of Lancaster, Penna., at which place he had been a student in the Franklin and Marshall College. He died Oct. 25, 1867, in Philadelphia, and is buried in Laurel Hill Cemetery. The widow of Lewis C. Audenried married Thomas J. Davis, an Attorney-at-Law in Lancaster, Penna., December, 1871. Lewis C. Audenried and Lydia Leamon had one child:

82 Mary M. Audenried, was born August 8, 1865; married (1) to David Bair Shenk on November 7, 1883. He was born October 15, 1864, and died February 16, 1897. Issue: i. Louis Audenried

Shenk, b. November 30, 1884; d. September 7, 1885; ii. Mary Audenried Shenk, b. June 29, 1891; d. August 15, 1904. Mary M. Audenried married (2) to John E. Malone on October 25, 1899. He was born January 9, 1862. She died November 22, 1913.

41 WILLIAM W. AUDENRIED, sixth son of George Audenried and Mary M. Hagenbuch, was born September 18, 1847; died 1889. He was graduated from Yale College, New Haven, Conn., and was a member of the firm of Audenried, Maitland & Company, brokers in Philadelphia, which firm met with misfortune in the panic of 1873. He married October 24, 1874, Ada B. Howard, born 1855; died 1898. She was the daughter of William Jordan Howard, an attorney-at-law in Philadelphia, and for several years attorney for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. He was born in 1826; died in 1898; married Sophia Brown; born in 1827; died in 1905. William W. Audenried and his wife are both buried in North Laurel Hill Cemetery. They had no children.

42 CATHERINE AUDENRIED, youngest daughter of George Audenried and Mary M. Hagenbuch, was born August 9, 1852, and married in Philadelphia, October 9, 1873, J. Horn Reichert, a member of the firm of Audenried, Maitland & Co., in the failure of which he lost $100,000, which sum he had inherited. He died February 25, 1875. They had one child:

83 Florence Reichert, b. June, 1874. Unmarried and living.

43 EMMA ADELE AUDENRIED, oldest child of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin, was born October 5, 1867, and died March 4, 1894. She was married October 4, 1892, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, by Dr. William P. Merrill, to James Henry Mitchell, who was born in 1851, and died March 29, 1925. He was the son of Joseph Eastburn Mitchell, who was born August 3, 1817; died October 5, 1887; and Mary Amanda Stiles, his wife, born May 14, 1827; died August 11, 1891.

They had no children.

44 WILLIAM GRATTAN AUDENRIED, JR., only son and second child of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin, was born in Philadelphia, December 13, 1870. He was educated at the William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, and at Haverford College, where he was graduated in 1890, with degree of B. A.

He was married at the Birmingham (Pennsylvania) Presbyterian Church, September 12, 1894, by Dr. William P. Merrill, to Edith Grier, who was born November 22, 1865. She was the daughter of Lemuel Grier; born 1833; died 1887; and his wife, Sarah Boileau, died 1907.

There are no children by this marriage.

William Grattan Audenried, Jr., although having registered as a medical student at the University of Pennsylvania, entered business in 1890, as the first new employee of N. W. Harris & Co., investment bankers, at their New York office. In 1893, he became Secretary and Treasurer, and later President of the Pennsylvania Milling and Export Company, a combination of twenty-seven flour mills. He then returned to the investment banking business, as a member of the firm of Audenried & Bowker, in 1905; and in 1907 he was made First Vice-President of J. S. & W. S. Kuhn, Inc., of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago and Boston, representing that firm in Paris, France, 1910-13. In 1915-18, he was associated with W. G. Souders & Company, investment bankers, Chicago; and in 1919-23, with Harvey Fisk & Company, New York; and since then, with J. R. Paull, New York, in financing.

At various times he has been a member of the following organizations: Philadelphia, Germantown and Merion Cricket Clubs; Merion (Philadelphia), Exmoor (Chicago) and Fox Hill (New York) Golf Clubs; University Club of Philadelphia; University Club of Chicago; Engineers and National Republican Clubs of New York.

45 MARY WALLACE AUDENRIED, second daughter of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin, was born May 31, 1874, in Philadelphia. She was married, October 16, 1901, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, Penna., by the Rev. Croydon C. Tyler, to George Brown Linnard. He was born July 16, 1873, in Philadelphia, Penna., and died December 14, 1919, in New York City. He was the son of Henry Mifflin Linnard; born in Philadelphia, 1848; died in Germantown, Philadelphia, 1884; and his wife, Elizabeth Brown; born in Philadelphia, 1853; died there, 1879.

George Brown Linnard was educated at the Germantown Academy, and at the Cheltenham Military Academy, in Montgomery Co., Penna. He was graduated from Princeton University, in 1894; then entered the University of Pennsylvania Law School, and became a member of the Philadelphia Bar in 1897. He practiced law one year; then entered the banking house of Graham, Kerr & Company, Fifth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia. He became a junior member of the firm in 1903, and retired from active business in 1910. In the World War he served as Secretary of the Selective Draft Board in Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. He was a member of the Racquet, University and Philadelphia Cricket Clubs; of the Society of Sons of the Revolution; and of the Society of the War of 1812, in which war his great-great-grandfather, Colonel William Linnard, left a distinguished record.

Children of George Brown Linnard and Mary Wallace Audenried:

- 84 Anna Louise Linnard, b. January 17, 1903, at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.
- 85 Mary Elizabeth Linnard, b. December 18, 1913, also at Chestnut Hill.

46 LOUISE MARTIN AUDENRIED, third daughter of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin, was born in Philadelphia, Penna., December 9, 1876. She was married at Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia, February 5, 1902, to John Clark Bole. He was born in Pittsburgh, Penna., March 6, 1865, and died April 25, 1916, the son of Robert Bole, and his wife Euphemia Kirkpatrick, who was a cousin to Empress Eugenie, of France.

John Clark Bole was educated in the public schools of Allegheny and Pittsburgh, after which he engaged in business with the Bell Telephone Company, and later with the Philadelphia Company, which is the utility company of Pittsburgh, supplying natural and artificial gas to the city. He later became interested in the iron and steel business, becoming the president of the Shenango Iron and Steel Company, with offices in Pittsburgh, and a rolling mill at Wheatland, Penna. In 1909 he devoted his energies to iron and steel brokerage, under the firm name of The John C. Bole Company, in which business he was engaged when he died.

Children of John Clark Bole and Louise Martin Audenried:

86 John Clark Bole, Jr., born March 22, 1903, in Pittsburgh, Penna. He attended school in Pittsburgh, and afterwards the Germantown Academy, Philadelphia, and Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Penna. He then entered Princeton University, from which he graduated in the class of 1926, and from the Architectural School, class of 1929.

87 Robert Fulton Bole, was born January 14, 1905, in Pittsburgh, Penna. He attended the public schools of Pittsburgh, the Germantown Academy, and Princeton Preparatory School, and was graduated from Princeton University in 1928.

47 ANNA FULTON AUDENRIED, fourth daughter of William Grattan Audenried and Emma Amelia Martin, was born October 7, 1878. On April 4, 1908, she was married by the Rev. Croydon C. Tyler, of Germantown, Philadelphia, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Chestnut Hill, Penna., to Francis Hopkinson Coffin.

Francis Hopkinson Coffin was born March 16, 1878, in Phoenixville, Pa. He was graduated from Germantown Academy in 1895, and from Princeton University, 1899, A.B. He is the son of Amory Coffin, who was born August 9, 1841, and died June 6, 1916; and his wife, Emma Hopkinson, who was born June 10, 1846, and died February 15, 1916. They have no children.

Mr. Coffin is a business manager and sales agent.

He is a member of the Colonial Club of Princeton, the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, the Society of Descendants of Signers of the Declaration of Independence. He is a 32nd Degree Mason, Knight Templar, Past Master of Peter Williamson Lodge, F. & A. M., Past Master of Lodge of Perfection, A. A. S. R., Director of the Scranton Club, and of the Country Club of Scranton (of which he is also Past President), Member of the Executive Board of the Conservation Council of Pennsylvania, Member of the Pennsylvania State Board of Game Commissioners, of the Rotary Club, and of the Scranton Council of Boy Scouts.

Mr. Coffin was first appointed to the Pennsylvania State Board of Game Commissioners by Governor Pinchot, during the latter's first term in 1924. He was re-appointed for another term by Governor Fisher, in 1927; and again in 1931, by Governor

Pinchot. "The Scranton Republican," for July 3, 1931, thus editorially commented on this last appointment:

"Scranton and Northeastern Pennsylvania, and the sportsmen and lovers of the outdoors of this section of the State, are honored by the presence on this Board of Game Commissioners of Mr. Francis H. Coffin, of Scranton. Mr. Coffin was first appointed seven years ago by Governor Pinchot, was re-appointed by Governor Fisher, and is again re-appointed now by Governor Pinchot. Earnest in his work of service, loyal to the interests of sportsmen and the public, a lover of wild life and devoted to its conservation and increase, adept in the science of husbanding game and game fish, studious, judicious and energetic, the cause of conservation and sport opportunity in Pennsylvania has much for which to thank Mr. Coffin as it has much for which to evince gratification at the news that he will continue in the service.

"So well and thoroughly have Mr. Coffin and his colleagues performed their duties, so much wisdom has been displayed by them in the opening and closure of certain seasons, that sportsmen all over the State have been with apparent unanimity petitioning for their retention on the Board of Game Commissioners. They may now rest assured that the same Board and the same general policy will continue to serve them, the public, and the wild life of Penn's Woods."

48 CHARLES YOUNG AUDENRIED, oldest son of John Thomas Audenried and Emma Young, was born in Philadelphia, December 9, 1863. He was prepared for college at Rugby Academy, Philadelphia, and in 1879, entered the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in the Department of Arts in 1883, winning besides, at this time, the Henry La Barre Jayne Prize for his Latin essay, "De Plebe Romana." Having next entered the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, he was graduated therefrom in 1886, and in July of that year was admitted to practice.

He read law in the office of the late John G. Johnson, and during this period annotated the American editions of "Lewin on Trusts," and "Lindley on Partnership." His first law partner was Logan M. Bullitt; later he was associated with Col. Edward Morrell in the same capacity.

He served in Common Council, from the Eighth Ward, 1891-1894, and was always regarded as an Independent Republican.

From 1894 to 1896, he represented that ward in Select Council, also.

At this time, the resignation of Hon. M. Russell Thayer from the bench of Common Pleas Court No. 4, left a vacancy to be filled by appointment. Judges Arnold and Wilson, according to established custom, had submitted to Governor Daniel H. Hastings the names of three men whom they considered suitable to fill this responsible position, but, after considering all of these, the Governor, to the surprise of all, appointed, on December 9, 1896, Charles Y. Audenried.

In November, 1897, Judge Audenried, having creditably filled the office, was re-nominated, and was elected for the ten-year term beginning in January, 1898. In 1907, he was again re-nominated and re-elected for another ten-year term, and in 1917, the electorate honored him with a third term.

Meanwhile, on March 31, 1915, he had been commissioned President Judge, an office in which he served twelve years, or until his retirement from the Bench. In 1918, he was offered an appointment to the Bench of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, but withdrew his name in favor of his colleague, Justice Alexander Simpson, who then received the appointment.

In 1927, he declined the re-nomination which would have been equivalent to election. His retirement from the Bench took place in December, 1927, and the event was made the occasion of a ceremony, on December 27th, in which more than five hundred members of Bench and Bar paid a farewell tribute to his thirty-one years of service. At this meeting sponsored by the Law Association, of which Francis Shunk Brown was Chancellor, praise of the retiring Judge was voiced by such men as Chief Justice Robert von Moschzisker, of the State Supreme Court; Judge William B. Linn, of the State Superior Court; Hampton L. Carson, former Attorney General; and Judges Thomas D. Finletter and Joseph P. McCullen, colleagues of Judge Audenried in Common Pleas Court No. 4.

The Philadelphia "Public Ledger," for Wednesday, December 28, 1927, printed, as its leading editorial, the following tribute to Charles Y. Audenried:

"Judge Audenried's voluntary relinquishment of his judicial office, by declining a re-nomination and re-election at the recent election, deprives the Philadelphia courts of one of their most able and respected jurists. The members of the Bar assembled in his court-room yesterday to pay to him the tribute of their regard on his last appearance on the Bench, an impressive and dignified ceremony, which in itself was far more significant even than the warm encomiums of the speakers. For Judge Audenried, even more than twenty years of service in the administration of the civil and criminal law, retires in the full plenitude of his powers, and his departure is to be regretted for more reasons than one. He upheld by his dignity and learning, by his fearless judgments and sound exposition of the law, the best judicial traditions. He proved himself a worthy successor to Judge M. Russell Thayer, to whose place he was appointed in 1896 by Governor Hastings, and was an example to the Bench and Bar of the highest standard of integrity."

The Philadelphia "Evening Bulletin," also made him the subject of its leading editorial on December 29, 1927, saying:

"Judge Audenried's farewell remarks on the eve of his retirement from the Bench of the Common Pleas Court No. 4 did him honor. He was appointed to a vacancy when he was only thirty-three years old and has served for thirty-one years with credit to the city and distinction to himself. In the little story he told of his sponsors when he was appointed lies the secret of his success, or part of the secret. The sponsors told the Governor, 'He doesn't know much law, but we believe that we could teach him.' He has been teachable because he never assumed that he knew everything. And because he has striven to learn during his whole career, his decisions have as a rule, been so sound that they have rarely been overruled by the higher courts. The Bar has always felt that when it tried a case before him, it would get as close an approximation of justice as was humanly possible.

"He could have been re-nominated and re-elected this year if he had said the word. There was general regret that he had decided to deprive the city of his services at a time when he had many years of vigorous life ahead of him."

That Judge Audenried felt that he could do his best work in his chosen profession, is shown by his steadfast refusal to encourage mention of his name for the offices of Mayor of the city, Governor of the state, etc. In this opinion, his constituents concurred, as shown by his repeated re-elections.

He never permitted browbeating of witnesses. His judicial opinions were noted for their clarity of expression, and were brief, terse and concise. In an interview, given after his retirement, on the subject of the "crime wave," he said:

"In my opinion, crime is increasing in this country, but, of course, we must take into consideration the fact that the population is increasing enormously, too, and the number of criminals is not, proportionately, increasing as rapidly as a survey of the front pages of our newspapers nowadays might lead us to suppose. Moreover, I believe that every war is inevitably followed by a crime wave. War has the effect of dulling the sensibilities. Ten years ago we had no class of armed 'hold-up' men running around wild in motor cars, and these so-called bandits are usually found to be ex-service men who have seen some action in the war and have been instructed in the use of firearms. As to the quantity of youthful murderers, such as Hickman and Loeb, I believe that the war had an enormous influence on their minds, too, for as children they read and heard of atrocious crimes calmly perpetrated in the name of 'war,' and thus any tendency in themselves toward violence was secretly and inevitably aggravated, and, in a sense, was justified in their own minds.

"For some, to see nations resorting to violence to settle disputes, is to argue that between individuals the same law, or, rather, lack of law, exists, and to act accordingly.

"And I believe," said Judge Audenried, "that the sentimental attitude of a few 'reformers,' in regard to prisons and prisoners generally, is responsible for a certain amount of crime. Prisoners should be treated humanely, of course, but prisons should not be transformed into Y. M. C. A.'s. After all, a man is sent to prison to be punished, not to learn a trade or read books. Self-government by prisoners I consider extremely dangerous. A man or woman is usually 'criminal' precisely because he or she is lacking in self-control and power of right judgment, and it follows that self-government is not advisable for persons who have not been able to control themselves.

"Through self-government in some prisons it has been recently possible for prisoners to plan and to execute escapes, and this should not be tolerated."

His rulings on the Sunday Law were generally approved by public opinion. Notable among other cases over which he presided, was the "Two-Cent Fare" case, in which he dismissed the suit of the City of Philadelphia against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, by declaring a two-cents-per-mile rate confiscatory, and, therefore, unconstitutional. Other cases had to do with the Pure Food Laws; the right of taxpayers to inspect the city's books; the legality of supplemental contracts in municipal work;

the question of the fees of the office of Register of Wills; the application of the 'pay-as-you-go' act to the city finances; and the right of the city to erect a Municipal Court building on the Parkway.

Among the many business positions held by Judge Audenried were those of secretary and treasurer of the Macungie Iron Co., secretary and treasurer of the Gas Company of West Chester, president of the Frankford and Bristol Turnpike Co., and director of the Upper Delaware River Transportation Co., the State Line and Sullivan Railroad, and the National Bank of Northern Liberties.

He was a member of the Law Association of Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania State Bar Association, the Law Academy (which he served five years as vice-provost), The Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Union League, Lawyers' Club of Philadelphia, Philadelphia Country Club, and the Athenaeum of Philadelphia, of which he was a director.

On April 12, 1898, Charles Y. Audenried was married (first), at Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, O., by Bishop William A. Leonard, to Mary Corning; born April 1, 1871; died June 7, 1904; buried in the Audenried Lot, Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia. She was the daughter of Warren Holmes Corning; born February 18, 1841; died September 3, 1899; by his wife Mary Helen Wick; born May 24, 1841; died September 12, 1929; to whom he was married, in Cleveland, O., December 7, 1864.

On April 27, 1910, Judge Audenried was married (second), at the residence of the bride's mother, on 18th street, below DeLancey Place, Philadelphia, to Mrs. Elizabeth L. Benton Grubb, daughter of Stephen and Hannah Keyser Lehman Benton. She was born September 25, 1865.

There was no issue by either marriage.

Judge Audenried died April 16, 1930, at his home, "Lancaster House," 6331 Lancaster avenue, Overbrook, Philadelphia, Pa. At his death, a number of the Courts adjourned, and a minute in his memory was entered upon the records of Quarter Sessions Court No. 1, over which he had presided during the last month of his duties.

He was buried in his family lot in Central Laurel Hill Cemetery.

49 JANE WILLS AUDENRIED, second child of John Thomas Audenried and Emma Young, was born in Philadelphia, September 20, 1865. She was married October 23, 1889, at the Second Presbyterian Church, 21st and Walnut streets, Philadelphia, by the Rev. John S. MacIntosh, to William Wonderly Fitler.

Mayor

William Wonderly Fitler, youngest child, and second son of Edwin Henry Fitler and Josephine R. Baker, was born in Philadelphia, December 19, 1857. He attended the Episcopal Academy, and, after graduating, he traveled for two years through the principal countries of Europe and the East. In 1875, he entered business with the Philadelphia Cordage Works, of which his father, Edwin H. Fitler, was proprietor. In 1880, he was admitted to partnership, and when, on the death of his father in 1896, the firm was incorporated, he became vice-president and general manager. In 1898, on the retirement, because of illness, of his brother, Edwin H. Fitler, Jr., he became president and treasurer. He retired in 1925, although retaining a directorship in the Company.

He was a director of The Pennsylvania Company for Insurances on Lives and Granting Annuities, North Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Academy of Music, and the Northern Liberties Gas Works. He was a member of the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Colonial Society, the Union League, Philadelphia Country Club, Gulph Mills Golf Club, and the Bachelors' Barge Club; and for a time he served as president of the Cordage Association of the United States.

He died March 31, 1931, at his home, "Eagleviwe," Villa Nova, Penna., and was buried at Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

He was educated at Rugby Academy, the Henry Hobart Brown School and the University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated from the Wharton School of Finance, the University of Pennsylvania, June, 1890. After graduation, he went into business, being connected with the firm of Alfred Tucker, coal dealers. He also became president of the Pennsylvania Iron Works. On December 1, 1919, he was married to Mrs. Sarah Brinton Wentz, daughter of Dr. John Brinton and Sarah Ward, at her home in Haverford, Penna., by the Rev. Floyd Tompkins. She was born May 21, 1881, and lives at 1800 DeLancey Place, Philadelphia. They had no issue.

Lewis Audenried was a member of the Union League and of the Racquet Club.

He died November 5, 1920, and is buried in his father's lot in Central Laurel Hill Cemetery, Philadelphia.

52 MARION AUDENRIED, fifth child of John Thomas Audenried and Emma Young, was born April 1, 1873, at 1825 Arch Street, Philadelphia. On January 9, 1902, she was married, at the house of her brother-in-law, William W. Fitler, 1625 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, by Dr. Charles Wood, to George Washington Kendrick, 3rd.

George Washington Kendrick, 3rd, son of George Washington Kendrick, Jr., and Minnie Murdoch, was born April 1, 1872. His father died March 13, 1916; his mother, May 19, 1903. He was educated at Rugby Academy, and at the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated in 1893.

He entered the business of banking. In 1903, he became the Philadelphia representative of Redmond & Co., 507 Chestnut Street, a position which he held until 1911, when he became a partner in the banking firm of E. W. Clark & Co. In 1920, he formed a partnership with Clarence H. Clark, 3rd, under the name of George W. Kendrick, 3rd & Co., bankers, with offices at 1431 Walnut Street.

While at college, he was an active member of the Mask and Wig Club, 1889-1894. He was also a member of the Racquet Club, Bankers Club of New York, University Lodge, 610, F. & A. M., and the Philadelphia Commandery, and was Commander-in-Chief of the Philadelphia Consistory during the war. He was a thirty-third degree Mason, and died at his home in Villa Nova, Pa., June 10, 1933.

55 FLORENCE AUDENRIED, the daughter of Joseph Crain Audenried and Mary J. Colket, was born at Elizabeth, N. J. (the evening of the day her parents landed in Jersey City from Europe), October 3, 1867. She was baptized at the Trinity Church, St. Louis, Mo., March 18, 1868. She married, January 14, 1891, in St. Matthew's Church, Washington, D. C., Charles Marie Ludovic, Comte de la Forest-Divonne; born November 13, 1865. He was attached to the French Legation in Washington in 1890. She died May 4, 1932.

The cradle of the family de la Forest de Divonne is situated, and the ruins can still be seen and visited, near the town of "Yenne" at the foot of the mountains called "Le Mont du Chat," not far from Aix-les-Bains, Savoie.

The de la Forest family was originally from Savoie, and became French when the Comté de Gex was transferred to France and the name Divonne annexed to that of de la Forest when Gilbert de la Forest married the widow and heiress of the Baron de Divonne, about 1660. By patent of Louis XV the Baronnier was converted into the Comté de Divonne and the title of Count maintained by the King of Italy as the Archives in Turin confirm. The first mention of the de la Forest family dates from 1110, when Amé de la Forest accompanied his Sovereign Amé III Duc de Savoie to Rome for the coronation of Henri V.

The father of Charles Marie Ludovic, Cte. Lodvic de la Forest de Divonne, Cte. de la Croix and Baron de Rumilly Chevalier de Matte, married Claire-Clemence de Maille, one of the daughters of the Marquis and Marquise de Maille de la Vous-Laudry, who counts among his ancestors Claire-Clemence de Maille-Breze, who married the Grand Conde, as well as Sainte Francoise Chantal and the Bien Heureuse Jeanne Marie de Maille, and on his mother's side Cte. Ludovic de la Forest de Divonne, has the honor of descending from Saint Louis, Roi de France.

*The Family of Musche allied to the
Family of Audenried
1723-1933*

The family of Musche is to be found in the Netherlands (Holland and Flanders).

1 JOHN MUSCHE, the ancestor of those mentioned in this article, was the son of "Arnold Musche and was born at Kostnick-Darmstadt of Lutheran parents, Sept. 19, 1723. He became acquainted with the Moravian Brethren while at Ziegenheim, Hesse, and united with them at Herrnhaag in March, 1748. He immigrated to Pennsylvania in the year 1750, under the auspices of the Moravian Church, being one of a colony of young brethren who were sent over from the old country in the Moravian vessel 'Irene,' Capt. Nicholas Garrison, Jr., in command. The Irene put to sea from Dover, May 11, 1750, and arrived at New York June 22nd of the same year. Prior to his coming to America, he had been a resident of the Moravian settlement Herrnhaag, near Frankfort-on-the-Main." (Records of Moravian Church, Bethlehem, Pa.)

Being an unmarried man, on his arrival at Bethlehem, according to the custom of the society, he entered the house of the single brethren.

In July, 1759, he left the Moravian Brotherhood because, as has been stated, he refused to comply with a rule of taking a wife of the chief officer's selection. In 1760-61, he married Anna Catherine Kroner and settled at Easton, Penna., where, according to the records of the German Reformed Church, he died July 4, 1788, his funeral services being conducted by the Rev. Frederick Herrman. According to the records of the Lutheran Church at Easton, he returned to the faith of his parents, and in 1770, he and his wife Anna C. Kroner, united themselves to that congregation. Mrs. Musche died about the year 1797.

She married Feb. 15, 1784, at the New Goshenhoppen Church, Montgomery Co., the Rev. Philip Rheinhold Pauli, who was born in the city of Magdeburg, Prussia, June 22, 1742, and died at Reading, Penna., Jan. 27, 1815, the son of the Rev. Ernst L. Pauli and Magdalina Gutschartin, his wife. His father was Superintendent, Consistorial Counsellor and Court Preacher of the Principality of Bernberg. Philip R. Pauli commenced his studies at the public school at Magdeburg and afterward was removed to the Joachim Gymnasium in Berlin, and completed his studies at the Universities of Halle and Leipsic. After this he passed some time in travel in Europe and in 1783, landed in America. After four years teaching in what is now the University of Pennsylvania, from which he received the degree of Master of Arts, in 1789, he devoted himself to the Ministry and from that time until 1793, was Pastor of Boehms and a neighboring Lutheran Church in Montgomery County, Pa. In 1793, he commenced his labors at Reading, as Pastor of the German Reformed Church and continued them for twenty-one years. He, with his wife, are buried in the Cemetery at Reading.

3 CATHERINE MUSCHE, second daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, was born at Easton, Penna., in 1764, and died near Beaver, Penna., in 1853, aged eighty-nine years. She married David Johnson, who was a tutor in the University of Pennsylvania, as it now is, but was then the Philadelphia Academy, of the Greek and Latin languages. In 1790, he was appointed Principal of the Washington Academy, now Washington and Jefferson College, and in 1791, he accepted the post of Principal of the Canonsburg Academy, now also part of the Washington and Jefferson College, which position he held until 1796. He was a member of the Legislature of Pennsylvania from Washington County, and by Thomas McKean, Governor of Pennsylvania, was appointed Register, Recorder and Clerk of the Orphans Court in Beaver County, Penna., 1802 to 1834. He was born in Ireland and came to America before the Revolutionary War, in which he served as an officer. David Johnson was born in 1746, and died at Beaver, Pa., March 6, 1837.

Children of David Johnson and Catherine Musche:

- 20 John Johnson, who was a lawyer by education, was a Captain in the War of 1812, and was killed at the Battle of Fort George, 1813.
- 21 James Johnson, served in the War of 1812, during which he died.

March 23, 1878. They had two sons and four daughters.

4 MARIA MUSCHE, third daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, was born at Easton, Oct. 19, 1766, and died at Reading, Nov. 16, 1856, aged ninety years. She married Lewis Jacoby, who was born in Saxe-Gotha, Aug. 21, 1758, and died at Reading, Penna., Nov. 8, 1841, aged 83 years. He was a merchant at Reading. Mrs. Jacoby's will was made in 1856, and in it she mentions her niece, Mary Phillips, and her nephews, Joseph, David, Ashur and Lewis Dreibelbeis. They died without children, and are buried in the cemetery at Reading, Penna.

MAGDALENA MUSCHE, fourth daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, was born at Easton, Nov. 22, 1768, baptized at the First Reformed Church, Dec. 4, 1768, and married a Mr. Wiggins. They lived at Trenton, N. J., and of several children, two daughters alone survived, both of whom married.

6 ANN MUSCHE, fifth daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, was born at Easton, in 1772, and died at Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 14, 1852, aged 81 years. She married Samuel Depui, who died in 1846. Samuel Depui was the son of Nicholas Depui, who was the descendant of Nicholas Depui, a Huguenot who fled from France to Holland in 1685, and afterwards came to New York. He lived at Esopus, and in 1725, came to Minisink, Pa., where he purchased a large tract of land from the Minsi Indians, in 1727, where now stands the town Shawnee. The Depuis were one of the first families to settle at the Delaware Water Gap, and the old family mansion still stands there. Elizabeth, the sister of Samuel Depui, married James Stroud, the son of Jacob Stroud, who was a colonel in the Revolutionary Army, and the founder of Stroudsburg, Penna. Mrs. Ann Depui is buried at Harrisburg.

Children of Samuel Depui and Ann Musche:

- 28 Jacoby Depui.

32 John Depui, b. Apr. 16, 1798; married, 1823, Louisa Kurtz, and had Elizabeth Depui. He died March 9, 1829. In 1827, John Depui was Clerk of the Pennsylvania Senate.

33 James Depui, b. Apr. 20, 1803; d. at Chester, 1868; m. 1829, Hannah Israel, who died 1852. He studied for the Ministry and in 1850, was appointed Chaplain in the U. S. Army, which position he held until June 18, 1860. They had issue: James Depui Jr., and Hannah Depui.

7 ANNA CHRISTINA MUSCHE, sixth daughter of John Musche and Anna Catherine Kroner, was born at Easton, Penna., Sept. 25, 1776, baptized at the First Reformed Church, Oct. 13, 1776, and died at Philadelphia, March 15, 1864, aged eighty-eight years.

On Nov. 28, 1791, she was married to Louis Audenried, who had come to America from the Canton of Basle, Switzerland, in 1789, and died in 1816, aged 60 years. About 1840, Mrs. Audenried removed to Philadelphia, where, at her sister Elizabeth Pauli's house, she had met her husband. She was a member of the Lutheran Church and a constant attendant. "As long as health and strength would permit, we saw Sunday after Sunday, the venerable old lady in her accustomed place in the Lord's House," wrote her Pastor. At her birth, the storm of the Revolutionary War raged about her cradle; at her death, nearly a Century afterwards, the fiercer storm of the Civil War raged about her bedside. She lies buried in the family lot at Laurel Hill Cemetery, where the remains of her husband, which had been brought from Schuylkill County, had been placed some years before.

Children of Louis Audenried and Anna Christina Musche:

Some Account of the Family of Wills

Mentioned in the North of Ireland in 1578 to and including

James Wills

and

His descendants,

one of whom married into the Family of Audenried

1749-1933

According to Burke, "the Family of Wills came to Carrickfergus, Ireland, from Wales, in early times." In 1578, Nicholas Wills was mayor of Carrickfergus, as also in the years 1581 and 1593, in which last year he died. In 1594, Robert Wills was sheriff of Carrickfergus, in which year he also died. In 1595, Robert Wills and his wife had a half share in a division of land.

Among the persons of note of Carrickfergus mentioned in the year 1600, was Nicholas Wills (most probably son of the former mayor), who was residing in a little castelated mansion, near Castle Worrall, the fort. Mention is also made of the house of Robert Wills and the castle of Charles Wills, called Castle Moyle or New Castle. There is also mentioned Wills Park and in the ancient church one aisle is called Wills Aisle. In 1603 and in 1606, in a division of land, John Wills received three-quarter shares. Among the tenants of Carrickfergus, in 1674, were Nicholas Wills, who paid 3 S, 4 d. taxes, the heirs of Robert Wills who paid five shillings, and the heirs of Thomas Wills who paid three shillings the half-year. In 1709, in the rent roll for the one-half year, appear the names of James Wills, executor, and the executor of Thomas and Robert Wills. In 1731, appears the name of James Wills, who paid three shillings, four pence the half-year and also the names of Thomas Wills, who paid one shilling, and Robert Wills who paid five shillings, these three being undoubtedly the sons of the preceding. The similarity of given names makes it reasonable to suppose that the above mentioned Wills were descendants of the same family. Monaghan is one of the neighboring counties and in it we find the family whose given names are the same as those already mentioned and among them appears the name of James Wills, the ancestor of those below mentioned.

1 JAMES WILLS, was born in the County of Monaghan, Ireland, in March, 1749. He emigrated from the town of Auchnacloy, parish of Argyle (or as it was anciently written Airigle) County of Monaghan, on the 1st of April, 1793, and landed with his family at New Castle, Delaware, on the 5th of August, 1793. During that year he went first to McKeesport and afterwards to Pittsburgh, Penna., where he died March 14, 1822, aged seventy-three. He married in Ireland in 1776, Mary Lawson, who was born in 1759, and died at Pittsburgh, Jan. 16, 1821, aged sixty-two. They are both buried in Allegheny Cemetery.

17 JANE MARIA WILLS, first daughter of Alexander Wills and Isabella Wallace, was born at "Walton Farm," Cumberland Co., Penna., June 8, 1808, and was married Apr. 24, 1826, to the Hon. William Audenried, at that time State Senator from Schuylkill and Berks Counties, Penna. The following is the announcement as it appeared in the Harrisburg paper. "Married on Monday evening, Apr. 24, 1826, by the Rev. Mr. Williams, William Audenried, Esq., member of the Senate of Pennsylvania, and Miss Jane Maria, daughter of Alexander Wills, Esq., of "Walton Farm," Cumberland County. After the death of her husband, she removed her family from Cumberland County, where she was then residing, to Philadelphia in 1853, where the family of her husband as also her sister, Mrs. Semple, were living. She resided first on North 6th Street, second door above Spring Garden, west side, and afterward purchased house 611 North 11th Street, where she lived, and where she died, Jan. 21, 1863. She lies buried in the family burial lot in Laurel Hill Cemetery, where the remains of her husband and sons already dead, had been brought and buried. On the afternoon of Jan. 21, apparently in perfect health, she lay down to take a little rest, but it was forever, for her pure soul passed to the God who gave it. A more kind, devoted mother, children never had, and if it is possible, her spirit looks from on high to bless and watch over them."

*Some Account of
of
Hanover Township, Dauphin County
(formerly) Lancaster County, Pennsylvania and his descendants, one of whom married into the Family of Wills
1712-1878*

According to Burke and other recognized authorities on Heraldry in the Kingdom of Great Britain, Richard Walense, who possessed, in 1174, the Barony of Riccarton in the County of Ayr, Scotland, "was the progenitor of the Wallaces from whom all others come." One of the above mentioned authorities in a genealogical tree brings the family of Wallace from this Richard Wallace, through a long line of distinguished men, down to Sir John Wallace, who was living, in 1560, and who had five sons, one his successor John, the others William, Robert, Michael and Allan, and adds "from the younger portion of the sons are descended more than one family of the name in the North of Ireland." (History of Ayr and Wigton by Jas. Paterson).

Early in the sixteenth century between 1600 and 1618, the inhabitants of the Northern Counties of Ireland rebelled against the English Rule. That portion was depopulated and immigrants from Scotland encouraged to settle upon the vacant land. Quite an influx of Scots took place, who, with their descendants, were called Scotch-Irish. The improvement and civilization of that portion of Ireland are due to those thrifty people. About the close of the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth centuries they became oppressed by the tyranny and exactions of a despotic and profligate monarch, and many determined to expatriate themselves with their families to the American Colonies. They constituted a large portion of the early settlers of Pennsylvania, and were nearly all Presbyterians in their Church relations. Among these was the Wallace family from the Country of Londonderry and our interest lies in the one who settled near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and who was named Robert Wallace.

1 ROBERT WALLACE, the first of the name of whom there is any authentic knowledge in this country and from whom those mentioned in the following pages descend, was born in the County of Londonderry, Ireland, in the year 1712. He came to America about 1735. From a paper which is recorded at the Land Office, in Harrisburg, and dated at Philadelphia Feb. 7, 1738, signed by Thomas Penn, it appears that Robert Wallace had made application for two hundred and forty acres of land situated on Suahatouro, now Swatara Creek, adjoining those of James Harris and William Wilson, and this same paper directs Benjamin Eastman, Surveyor General of the State of Pennsylvania to whom it is addressed, to have these lands surveyed.

This was done and a patent, which is recorded in the Land Office at Harrisburg, was granted dated Dec. 3, 1743. Thus it appears that Robert Wallace settled on Swatara Creek, Hanover Township, then Lancaster, now Dauphin County, about the year 1738, being twenty-six years of age. He served as Coroner of Lancaster County from Oct. 4, 1746, to Oct. 8, 1749. In Rupp's History of Dauphin County, Robert Wallace's name appears among the taxable inhabitants of the west end of Hanover Township, in 1750, and in the same history his name again appears on Oct. 31, 1755, in connection with that of John Harris, the founder of Harrisburg, signed to an appeal to the people of Paxtang, to arm and protect themselves against the Indians.

In 1759 and again in 1763, Robert Wallace was "Assessor of Taxes for the King's use," in Hanover Township, and rates his taxes at seven shillings, six pence. In 1759, for the sum of three hundred and eight pounds, he bought of Etty Robinson a grist-mill situated on Swatara Creek, together with two hundred and sixty acres of warrant land, thus making in all over five hundred acres of land which he owned in Hanover Township. In accordance with the Act of Assembly in 1777, requiring all white, male inhabitants to take the Oath of Allegiance to the State, he, on June 13, 1777, took that oath.

The Presbyterian Church of Derry in Lancaster, now Dauphin County, was one of the first to be organized in the state. A patent for one hundred acres of land was granted for the purpose of building this church, and is dated July 18, 1741, and is recorded in the Land Office at Harrisburg. The survey was made in 1738. The incorporators as mentioned in the patent were the Pastor, Rev. Wm. Bertram, Hugh Wilson, Robert Wallace. This was the church he attended and the sturdy pioneers carried their muskets to protect themselves and families from the prowling Indians. Soon after its incorporation, the Rev. John Elder became the Pastor, and in the graveyard attached to that now venerable edifice are the graves of Robert Wallace and Mary, his wife, marked by a simple and appropriate monument.

In 1740, he married Mary Clyde, who was born in 1721, and died April 12, 1784. She was the descendant, if not the daughter, of Michael and Bridget Clyde, of Scotch ancestry, who came from the north of Ireland and settled in the Irish settlement of Northampton County. Robert Wallace died April 10, 1783, and in his will, which was dated June 12, 1781, probated May 9, 1783, and recorded at Lancaster, Penna., he mentions his wife Mary and his sons Moses and James, to whom he leaves his plantation and family Bible; his daughters Isabel and Mary, and his sons-in-law, Thomas McNair and Joseph Boyd. He appoints his sons and his sons-in-law Thomas McNair and Joseph Boyd, his executors. By them this estate was appraised May 2, 1783, and not including his real estate amounted as follows:

- †9 Mary Wallace, b. Dec. 19, 1766; d. May 8, 1822.

2 MOSES WALLACE, eldest son of Robert Wallace and Mary Clyde, was born on his father's plantation on Swatara Creek, Apr. 22, 1741. In the year 1767, the Manor of Lowther, in Cumberland County, opposite Harrisburg, was surveyed and divided into twenty-eight lots. Lot Number 4 was taken up by Moses Wallace, for which he paid three hundred and eighty pounds, ten shillings to the proprietors and governors, Thomas and John Penn. This lot embraced two hundred and six acres and for it Moses Wallace received a patent which is recorded in the Land Office at Harrisburg, signed by John Penn and dated Sept. 12, 1774, the warrant for the same being dated Apr. 2, 1771.

In the patent the plantation is called "Walton Farm," and as "Walton Farm" it was always afterwards designated and remained in possession of the family until 1854, a period of eighty-seven years.

Moses Wallace had the following Revolutionary War service: In 1778, he served as a private in the Sixth Battalion, York Co. Militia, and in the Third Battalion, Cumberland Co. Militia, 1780.

Moses Wallace died Nov. 11, 1803, and is buried in Paxtang Church burying ground, three miles from Harrisburg. Upon his tombstone is inscribed, "He was loved by all who knew him, lived and died contented." The following is from the Harrisburg paper of that date:

"Died, Nov. 11, 1803, at his residence opposite this town, Moses Wallace, an old resident and an honest man."

He was married, in 1770, by the Rev. John Elder, to Jean, the daughter of Richard Fulton and Isabel Chesney, of Paxtang Township, who was born 1748, and died May, 1786. She lies buried in the family burying lot by the side of her husband. The will of Moses Wallace was made in 1801, and is recorded at Carlisle, Penna. He leaves his daughters Isabel and Elizabeth, each, five hundred pounds lawful money, horse, saddle and bridle worth one hundred pounds, feather bed, bedstead and covering, a set of drawers and chest, and ten thousand dollars left by their uncle Chesney. To his son Richard, he leaves all his other property, both real and personal. On Nov. 28, 1803, an inventory and appraisement of his estate was made, which exclusive of real estate was as follows:

To cattle, household goods and farming implements.....	967	10	9
To moneys due on account of loans.....	476	12	3
Total.....	1444	3	0

- 12 Elizabeth Wallace, b. 1776; d. Jan. 12, 1802; unmarried.

13 Isabella Wallace, a twin sister of Elizabeth; b. 1776, at "Walton Farm," Cumberland County, Pa. Her brothers and sister having died before and soon after the death of her father, she became heir to all his estate, both real and personal. On May 8, 1806, she married Alexander, the son of James Wills and Mary Lawson, his wife. He was born May 9, 1781, and died April 18, 1853. She died January 27, 1826, and lies buried with her husband in Paxtang Church burying ground. They had several children, most of whom died in childhood. Those who attained their majority were: i. Jane Maria Wills, b. June 8, 1808; d. January 21, 1863; ii. Rebecca Gibson Wills, b. January 23, 1811; d. September 16, 1850; iii. Caroline Eliza Wills, b. 6 JAMES WALLACE, second son of Robert Wallace and Mary Clyde, was born on his father's plantation, at Swatara Creek, Hanover Township, then Lancaster Co., Aug. 18, 1751. During the Revolutionary War he served as a private in the Fourth and Fifth Battalions, Lancaster Co. Militia, and in 1783, was appointed Ensign of the First Battalion under command of Lt.-Col. John Rogers. He commanded a company during the Whiskey Insurrection. In 1807, the Militia of the State of Pennsylvania was organized under the new law, and James Wallace was appointed in that year Brigadier-General of the First Brigade of the Sixth Division of the State Militia. He was a member of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania from 1806 to 1810, inclusive, and a member of the Congress of the U. S. from 1815 to 1821, having defeated James Buchanan, afterwards President of the United States, in the election. By the will of his father, he inherited the plantation. On June 19, 1787, he married Sarah, the daughter of the Rev. John Elder, Pastor of Paxtang and Derry Congregations. John Elder was Colonel of a Regiment of Provincial Troops, July 11, 1763.

Sarah Elder was the grand-daughter of Michael Simpson, who was a Captain under General Montgomery at Quebec, Canada, in 1755, and was also a Captain during the Revolutionary War. She was born Oct. 19, 1752, and died Feb. 14, 1822. James Wallace died Dec. 15, 1823, and with his wife is buried in Derry Church burying ground. His will which is dated July 14, 1823, is recorded at Harrisburg, Penna., and by this he leaves the plantation and family Bible, which he inherited, to his son John.

Children of James Wallace and Sarah Elder:

- †29 Mary Wallace, b. May 4, 1788; d. May 16, 1844.
- †30 John Wallace, b. June 26, 1791; d. Jan 16, 1844.
- †31 Elizabeth Wallace, b. February 17, 1794.

8 ISABELLA WALLACE, daughter of Robert Wallace and Mary Clyde, was born Feb. 23, 1757, and died at Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 16, 1828. On Nov. 9, 1784, she was married by the Rev. John Elder to Moses Gillmor, who was born in Burt Parish of Temple More, Donegal Co., Ireland, in 1750. Until his sixteenth year he was brought up at Londonderry. In 1766, he came to America with an uncle, and settled in Hanover Township, then in Lancaster County, Pa. He returned to Ireland on business some years afterwards, and by reason of the Revolutionary War, he could not return until 1783. He married while abroad, and his wife died in Ireland. In 1785, when Harrisburg became the County Seat of Dauphin County, he removed there with his second wife, and established himself in business in Market Square. He was tall and well proportioned, grave and dignified and wore as was customary with gentlemen of his standing in society, the cue, cocked hat, short breeches and silver buckled shoes. He was a man of stately bearing, and courtly manners, and his tall, manly form, clothed in the dress peculiar to gentlemen of the old times, would command involuntary respect. He was a most worthy citizen and a man of sterling integrity, sincere, incorrupt and straight-forward in all his dealings. In Christian character he was decidedly old side, and in this day of so much that is fictitious and sensational in religious life, would be regarded as severe, cold and puritanic. Moses Gillmor died revered by all. (Taken from a sermon preached by the Rev. J. H. Robinson, March 7, 1868, on the Ruling Elders of the First Presbyterian Church of Harrisburg.) Moses Gillmor was a prominent man in the early history of Harrisburg and his name is frequently found in its records. For thirty-four years—1791-1825, he was an Elder of the First Presbyterian Church. He died June 10, 1825, and with his wife, who is said to have been a relative of his first wife, is buried in the Paxtang Church burying ground. His will was made in 1822, and is recorded at Harrisburg.

Will of Robert Wallace:

In the name of God, Amen. I, Robert Wallace, of Hanover Township, in the County of Lancaster, and State of Pennsylvania, being weak in body but of perfect mind and memory thanks be given to God, therefore calling to mind the mortality of the body and that it is appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament, that is to say principally and first of all, I give and recommend my Soul to God who gave it, and my body to the Earth to be buried in a Christian-like and decent manner at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting but at the general resurrection I shall receive the same again by the Mighty Power of God, and as touching such estate and worldly substance as it hath pleased God to bless me with, I give, bequeath and dispose of in the following manner and form, viz.:

First of all, I order all my just debts and funeral charges be fully paid and discharged off of the whole of my estate and goods.

Item I. I give and bequeath to my dearly beloved wife Mary, a decent and sufficient maintainance, during her natural life, out of the produce of my plantation in manner following, that is to say if she shall not think fit to live with her son James Wallace, then he is to build her a commodious house on said plantation where she chuses to have it, and if she does not incline to live on said Plantation with him, as aforesaid, then he, the said James, is to pay her yearly and every year ten pounds hard money. I also give and bequeath to her the sorrel mare and saddle, one cow and two sheep, all this in lieu of her dowery.

I order likewise that these cattle shall be kept and fed, summer and winter, out of the profits of my Plantation, without any expense to her.

I also bequeath to her, her bed and furniture and all her apparel.

Item II. I give and bequeath to my daughter Isabella, the young bald mare, her feather bed and furniture, and one hundred pounds in hard cash, to be paid to her one year after my decease.

Item III. I give and bequeath to my daughter Mary, my black mare's sucking colt, to be kept for her property till she is three years old and likewise her saddle and bridle, her feather bed and furniture, and moreover, one hundred pounds to be paid to her in hard cash in three years after my decease.

Item IV. I give and bequeath to my grand-daughter, Mary Boyd, daughter to Joseph Boyd, ten pounds to be paid to her in hard cash four years after my decease.

Item V. I give and bequeath to my grandson, Robert Wallace, son to Moses Wallace, one two-year old colt.

Item VI. I give and bequeath to my son-in-law, M. Boyd, five pounds to be paid in hard cash, two years after my decease.

Item VII. I give and bequeath to my son-in-law, Thomas McNair, five pounds to be paid likewise in hard cash, two years after my decease.

Item VIII. I give and bequeath to my grand-daughter, Martha McNair, daughter to said Thomas McNair, ten pounds to be paid to her in hard cash, five years after my decease.

Item IX. I give and bequeath to my son, Moses Wallace, twenty shillings to be paid to him in hard cash, two years after my decease.

Item X. I give and bequeath to my son, James Wallace, the whole of my plantation to him, his heirs and assigns, forever, with the one full half of the crop now in the ground, and likewise the gray horse, the big black mare, my new wagon, with all my implements of husbandry. I bequeath also to him and to my son Moses, the four volumes of the History of Josephus, to be divided between them as they may see fit. I bequeath, likewise, to my said son James, my house Bible, and I order that the rest of my books may be divided equally among the rest of my children.

Item XI. I give and bequeath all the remainder of my personal estate after the shares above bequeathed to all my children to be divided equally among them share and share alike.

Item XII. I constitute and appoint my sons Moses and James Wallace, and also my sons-in-law, Joseph Boyd and Thomas McNair, to be the only and sole executors of this my last will and testament, and I do hereby utterly disallow, revoke and disannul all and every other former wills, testaments, legacies, bequests and executors by me in any wise heretofore named, willed and bequeathed, ratifying and confirming this and no other, to be my last will and testament.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal this 12th day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-one.

ROBERT WALLACE (Seal).

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said Robert Wallace, as his last will and testament in the presence of us.

HUGH HAMILTON,
HUGH WILSON,
JOHN DUNLAP.

*The Family of Fulton
allied to the Family of Wallace
1706—1933*

It is supposed that Richard Fulton was the son of Samuel Fulton, who settled in West Conestogue Township, Chester Co., prior to 1722. Conestogue Township afterwards became Donegal and finally Paxtang, Lancaster Co. This Samuel had three children, Richard, Robert and Jean. Robert married Mary Smith, daughter of Alexander Smith, of Paxtang and became the father of Robert Fulton, the inventor.

According to Rupp's History of Dauphin and Lancaster Counties, the Fultons were among the earliest settlers, being there in 1722. They were Scotch-Irish, and from them descend Robert Fulton, the inventor of steamboats, who married a daughter of Chancellor Livingston, of "Livingston Mannor," New York. The one from whom the following descend was Richard.

1 RICHARD FULTON was born in Londonderry, Ireland, in the year 1706, and died November, 1774, aged 68, in Paxtang Township, Lancaster, now Dauphin County, Pa. He came to America in 1722. His will, which is recorded at Lancaster, Pa., is dated Nov. 11, 1774, and probated May 1, 1775, and it speaks of himself as "Richard Fulton of the Township of Paxton, in the County of Lancaster." His homestead was situated on the banks of the Susquehanna, just below Harrisburg. June 14, 1744, he was married by the Rev. John Elder to Isabel Chesney, who was born in 1714, and died April, 1779, in Paxtang. She was the daughter of William Chesney, or McChesney. She was also the sister of William Chesney, who resided in Newberry Township, York County, where he died in 1782, leaving over one thousand acres of real estate, ten thousand dollars in State Certificates, shares, etc., and mentions in his will, dated Nov. 24, 1782, probated Jan 3, 1783, his wife Elizabeth and the children of Isabel Fulton, and his brother-in-law, William Chalmers. During the Revolutionary War he was a member of the Committee of Safety from York County, and was also an Agent for Confiscated Estates, and as such, wrote the following letter of President Reed.

York County, 3rd July, 1779.

May it please your Excellency,

Permit me to acquaint your Excellency of our situation in this place as to agents appointed for Confiscated Estates. No person that was appointed ever took the oath directed or served but three, viz.: Robert Stephenson, Esq.; James Nailer, Esq. and myself; one of which is dead. Mr. Nailer is sick, I think unto death, and I have been in bad state of health this long time, unable to ride out, though frequently insulted by the disaffected friends, and dared to do our duty, therefore, I request your Excellency to appoint some other to assist me. I would beg leave to recommend William Mitchell, Esq., as a fit person. I expect he will serve and assist me with resolution. I know no other of my acquaintances except Major James Dill, perhaps both would be necessary, the sooner the appointment, the better. I have the honor of being your Excellency's

Obedient, humble Servant,

WILLIAM CHESNEY.

To his Excel. Joseph Reed.

In answer to this appeal came the following:

"In Council,
Philadelphia, Thursday,
August 14, 1779.

The Board taking into consideration the State of the Forfeited Estates in York County, and it appearing that Mr. Stephenson, one of the agents is dead, Mr. Nailer sick, and incapable of business so that Mr. Chesney only remains,

Resolved that William Mitchell, Esq., be appointed Agent of Forfeited Estates in the County of York."

William Chesney married, June 1, 1752, Esther (Say) Harris (widow of John Harris, of Harrisburg, Pa.), by the Rev. John Elder.

Isabel Chesney Fulton was born in 1714, and died Apr., 1779, aged sixty-five years. Both she and her husband are buried in Paxtang Church burying ground. Richard Fulton appointed his sons-in-law Moses Wallace, and Hugh Wilson, his Executors, who took, Dec. 6, 1774, an inventory of his estate which amounted to over fifteen hundred pounds old tenon. Both buried in Paxtang graveyard.

- 18 Hayes Fulton, b. Oct. 2, 1799.
- 19 Mary W. Fulton, b. Aug. 26, 1801; m. James Kelton, Jr., of Chester Co., Pa., by the Rev. Dr. DeWitt, on Mar. 14, 1825. No issue.

5 ISABEL FULTON, second daughter of Richard Fulton and Isabel Chesney, was born in 1753; m. Apr. 30, 1772, by the Rev. John Elder, to Hugh Wilson, who was born Sept. 26, 1748, and died Apr. 23, 1796. He was the son of James Wilson, who came from Ireland with his parents at the age of seven years. Hugh Wilson died in his 48th year, and is buried in Paxtang Church burying ground. Over his grave is a large marble slab, with the following inscription:

"After a life spent in piety, in the 48th year of his age, he bowed in humble resignation to the Divine will. His distressed wife and only child bereft of his dear society are left to deplore the loss of a tender husband and affectionate father, a real friend and Christian advisor."

Child of Hugh Wilson and Isabel Fulton:

- †20 Isabella Wilson, b. Mar. 9, 1773; d. Aug. 1, 1832.

6 GRIZZEL FULTON, youngest daughter of Richard Fulton and Isabel Chesney, was born in 1755, and died February 11, 1809, aged 54 years. She was married, June 16, 1774, by the Rev. John Elder to Alexander Wilson, who was born in 1741, and died June 7, 1786. They resided in Allen Township, Cumberland County, Pa., their place being on the Turnpike, about two miles from the Susquehanna. They are buried in the Paxtang Church burying ground.

Will of Richard Fulton:

In the name of God, Amen. The 11th day of Nov., in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, I, Richard Fulton, of the Township of Paxton, in the County of Lancaster, and Province of Pennsylvania, being sick and weak in body, but of perfect mind and memory, thanks be given to God, therefore, calling to mind the mortality of the body and that its appointed for all men once to die, do make and ordain this my last Will and Testament. That is to say principally and first of all, I give and recommend my Soul to God who gave it, and my body to the Earth to be buried in a Christian decent manner, at the discretion of my Executors, nothing doubting but at the general Resurrection, I shall receive the same again by the Mighty Power of God, and as touching such worldly estate and substance as it hath pleased God to bless me with, I give and dispose of the same in the following manner and form:

Item I. I order my funeral charges, and all my just debts to be paid and discharged out of the whole of my goods and estate.

Item II. I give and bequeath to my dear Wife Isabel, her saddle, her apparel, her bed and furniture, and while she continues my widow, I allow that she shall live on the Plantation with my children, and that she shall have what benefit she can make of the milk of the cows and poultry as can be spared after the family is supplied, as formerly, and that the negroe woman, be under her direction and likewise ten pounds yearly at her own disposal, besides her maintenance out of the produce of the plantation. But if it should not be agreeable to her and my children to live together, even while she continues in a single state, but that she may choose rather to live with one of her daughters, in that case, I then allow that she shall have her bed, apparel and saddle, as above, and ten pounds to be paid her yearly out of the profits of the plantation, and if she shall incline to marry, that she immediately after marriage shall quit the plantation with her bed, apparel and saddle, and twelve pounds to be paid to her at the discretion of my executors, and two milk cows in lieu of her dowery.

Item III. I give and bequeath to my dear son William Fulton, three hundred pounds, provided that he continues to live on this plantation, at least four full years after my decease, to be as a head to my younger children to manage and labour with them for the good of the family, said three hundred pounds to be paid in the following manner, viz:—one hundred pounds to be paid to him immediately on his leaving the family, the second hundred a year after that, and the third or last hundred to be given him one year after the second. But if my said son William does not incline to continue with the family, but to go off immediately and do for himself, in that case, I give and bequeath to him only one hundred and fifty pounds as the full share. I allow him of my goods and estate to be paid to him in three equal parts, viz:—Fifty pounds to be given to him immediately on his going away, and then fifty pounds a year till the whole is paid.

Item IV. I give and bequeath to my grandson Richard Wallace, son of Moses Wallace, ten pounds in part of the bond his due to me, to be put immediately to interest by said Moses Wallace, immediately after my decease, for the benefit of his said son Richard.

Item V. I give and bequeath to my grand-daughter Isabel Wilson, daughter of Hugh Wilson, ten pounds out of the above said bond to be paid one year after my decease by the above said Moses Wallace, to my son-in-law, the said Hugh Wilson, in trust for his said daughter Isabel, and by him to be put immediately to interest for the sole use and benefit of his said daughter Isabel.

Item VI. I give and bequeath to my dear daughters Jean Wallace and Isabel Wilson, the remainder of said bond to be equally divided between them.

Item VII. I give and bequeath to my dear daughter Grizzel Wilson, the little negroe child, called Rachel, to her, her heirs and assigns.

Item VIII. I give and bequeath to my dear children, Joseph and Richard, the whole of my plantation, to them and their heirs and assigns, to be divided equally between them share and share alike, and to enable and encourage them the better to hold the same and to pay off the several bequests and legacies above mentioned.

I give and bequeath to them, their heirs and assigns, the whole of my household furniture, my cows, horses, sheep, swine, save only what has been already bequeathed and demised with all my implements of husbandry to be possessed, enjoyed and occupied equally by them while the plantation is undivided between them, as it is my earnest desire, and I recommend it to them to live together with the greatest harmony and brotherly affection, and that they shall have the equal benefit of the negroe woman Abigail, the negro boy Dorricks, of the little girl Mary George, during the time of her indenture, and when it may become necessary to have the plantation divided, I order that the division may be made of said plantation equally between the said Joseph and Richard, by my executors, with the assistance and concurrence of my brother Chesney, and at the same time that the whole of my personal estate be equally divided between them in the same manner, share and share alike, and the negroes and the time of the above said white girl, to them, their heirs and assigns forever. But if my above said children Joseph and Richard do not incline to continue on the place, or it may be found necessary to put it to sale, I then order that it be sold to the best advantage and the money arising from the sale to be divided equally between my said sons Joseph and Richard, share and share alike, and let it be understood that if either of my two sons Joseph and Richard, should die under age, it is my will that the survivor shall inherit his share, whether of money, goods or land, and if any of these two, Joseph or Richard shall not incline to continue on the place, I then order that the plantation and personal estate be valued by my executors with the assistance and concurrence of my brother Chesney, and that the half of the value shall be given to the one that inclines to go away in such sums and at such times as my executors with my said brother shall see fit.

Item IX. I give and bequeath to my son Richard my house, Bible, and my silver shoe buckles.

Item X. I constitute my dear sons Moses Wallace and Hugh Wilson to be my sole executors, and that my brother Chesney be assisting to them, and act as guardian of my children to the utmost of his power, and I do hereby utterly disallow, revoke and disannul all and every other former Testament, Wills, Legacies, Bequests and Executors by me in any ways before named, willed and bequeathed ratifying, and confirming this and no other to be my last Will and Testament.

In Witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and seal, the day and year above written,

RICHARD FULTON (Seal).

Signed, sealed, published and declared by the said Richard Fulton, as his last will and testament in the presence of us.

HENRICH LERU,
GEORG LERU.

Be it known to all men by these presents, That I, Richard Fulton, of the Township of Paxton, in the county and province above said, have made and declared my last Will and Testament in writing, bearing date the 11th day of Nov., 1774. I, the said Richard Fulton, by this present Codicil do ratify and confine my said last will and testament, excepting only in the alteration hereafter mentioned, viz.:—I do give and bequeath to my beloved wife Isabel, my bay horse, called Rock, as her sole property to be used by her at any time and in whatever manner she may see fit, and my will and meaning is that this Codicil or Schedule be adjudged to be a part and parcel of my last will and testament, and that all things therein mentioned and contained, be faithfully and truly performed and as fully and amply in every respect as if the same were so declared and set down in my last will and testament.

Witness my hand this 15th day of Nov., 1774,

RICHARD FULTON.

State of Pennsylvania,
County of Lancaster. ss.

I, Jeremiah Rohrer, Register of Wills, in and for said county, do hereby certify the preceding to be a true copy of the original will of Richard Fulton, declared and duly proven according to law, on the 1st day of May, A.D., 1775, and remaining filed of record in the Register's office of said county.

Given under my hand and seal of office at the City of Lancaster, Penna., the 1st day of July, A.D., 1874.

J. ROHRER, Register.
